PAPER WRITTEN IN LONDON SHELTER

READ AT DUBLIN WOMEN'S MEETING

A paper, typewritten in a London air-raid shelter, which was shortly afterwards blown up by a bomb from an aeroplane, was read last night before the Women's Social and Progressive League, Lincoln Chambers, Dublin. The author of the paper, which had for its subject "Women in Ancient and Early Christian Ireland," was Miss Sorcha MacDermott.

Miss MacDermott was unable to come to Dublin, and her paper was read by Miss C. Clancy. Professor Mary Hayden presided.

To a great extent, said the paper, the standard of a nation's civilisation might be gauged by the position of its women. Long before the golden dawn of Christianity Gaelic men, by their respect for the women of their race, proved themselves worthy of honour. Irish women from the beginning of our history enjoyed every right and privilege of law in Ireland. They were the equals of Gaelic men, being neither their playthings nor their slaves, neither their pets nor their drudges. Girls were educated on the same lines as men, and even went to the same schools as boys. They were also sent out to fosterage like their brothers, but a higher charge was made for girls, as they were supposed to be less able to requite their foster parents by manual labour. Women in those early days were allowed to study medicine and to practise all the arts. The only right that law interfered with was in respect to landed property; women who had no sons were not allowed to leave land to their daughters.

THE PLACE OF ANGLO-IRISH LITERATURE

There were people in Ireland who claimed that the authentic medium of speech and literature was Gaelic. That could not be maintained in view of the fact that the majority of the people spoke English, said Mr. K. O'Shaughnessy last night when lecturing before the Dublin Literary Society at Lincoln Chambers, Dublin. The claim that Gaelic literature represented the main stream of the Irish contribution to literature in general was difficult to deny. Anglo-Irish literature, however, was denied a justifiable status by these thinkers, and that was not consonant with the facts. Since the middle of last century there had been a growing number of Irish writers in English who had endeavoured, and frequently with success, to interpret Ireland to Irishmen and to the world. In both schools and universities the only literatures studied were Gaelic or English literature proper. No place was made for Yeats, Synge, Stephens and Higgins.

Surely, said Mr. O'Shaughnessy, it was time that this anomaly should be remedied and that young Irishmen should be brought to the realisation that the so-called Anglo-Irish writers were an integral part of the corpus of Irish literature.

Professor W. Magennis presided.

NEW POLICE HELMET

The Dublin policeman's lot became a happier one yesterday when he was issued with a new helmet—a helmet which is lighter, and reputed to be more comfortable, than the old type. The knob and chain, which were features of the old type of helmet, have disappeared; the new issue is a less ornamental type, and the chain, which was for use as a chin-strap, has been replaced by a black leather strap.

TRINITY COLLEGE NOTES

FIRST NUMBER OF "T.C.D."

COLLEGE SOCIETIES' OPENING MEETINGS

By Our Correspondent.

THIS, the season of opening meetings in College Societies finds its glories rather tarnished by the restricted movements of war-time. In former years there was always at least a possibility that, while the Philosophical Society's platform would consist of Mr. James Joyce, Mr. Bernard Shaw, Mr. Paul Robeson and the Duchess of Atholl, the Historical Society would be able to produce Mr. Churchill, Sir Oswald Mosley, Mr. Harry Pollitt and M. Léon Blum. And in actual fact a great number of distinguished speakers from abroad, who might otherwise never have had the occasion to speak before Dublin audiences, did speak at the opening meetings of College societies. Now, however, the choice is inevitably restricted to men who, great as their personal abilities may be, yet have the drawback of being familiar figures in Dublin, unexpatriated prophets. Opening meetings this year may be wittier and wiser than ever before, but, alas, they will lack what was once their principal attraction—that of gawking. "So that's what he looks like—well, the little weed!"—these words of welcome will not rustle through the dining hall this year. Our graver spirits may well rejoice that such shallow pastimes will now give place to the sober and enduring profit of hearing men of knowledge rather than of notoriety.

Mr. R. J. Harvey.

SOCIETIES

The opening meeting of the University Philosophical Society took place last Thursday night, when the president, Mr. R. J. Harvey (Sch.) (Mod.), read his paper, entitled "University." His speakers were Mr. Denis Johnson, Mr. Peadar O'Donnell, Dr. Collis and Mr. Frank MacDermot. The opening meeting of the College Historical Society will be held next Wednesday. The auditor, Mr. W. W. Rooke, will deliver an address on "Some Obstacles to Clear Thinking." Speakers will be His Excellency the American Minister, Mr. Justice O'Byrne, Mr. Donal O'Sullivan (sometime Clerk of the Senate) and Mr. Leslie Montgomery ("Lynn Doyle"). It is regretted that Dr. Hyde will be unable to take the chair, but this will be capably filled by Mr. Justice Fitzgibbon, whose speech last year will not be readily forgotten by those who heard it. It is now announced that Mr. H. F. R. Morris has been awarded the society's Gold Medal in Composition, while a Medal in History goes to Mr. K. B. Watson. Both Mr. Watson and Mr. Morris graduated in history this year. They were also both prominent members of the Dublin University History Society.

"T.C.D."

The first number of T.C.D., which appeared on Thursday last, revealed to the curious the fact that last term's editor of the miscellany was Mr. Bethel Solomons, junior. The sub-committee's report, signed by Mr. R. P. C. Hanson, who has succeeded Mr. G. D. P. Allt as chairman of the company, finds "that Mr. Solomons has edited the magazine with enterprise and discernment," and has pleasure in recommending him for the best thanks of the company. Mr. Solomons has long been a familiar figure in College. He is a keen sportsman, who boasts that he never missed a match in the College Park, and is also well-known for possessing a fund of genial anecdote; for his distinguished University career did not make him in the least oblivious to the more convivial arts of life. But this is neither the time nor the place to speak of his achievements. Another interesting feature of this number is a long letter from Professor Synge, of Toronto, containing much very able criticism of the University of Dublin, as compared with Trinity College. Dr. Synge's last letter, more truculent and less carefully expressed, roused many defenders of our institutions. It is to be hoped that as many will be found to reply to his present grave objections.

Mr. W. W. Rooke.

COLLEGE CHAPEL

We regret to announce that the Bishop of Tuam will be unable, owing to illness, to preach in the College Chapel on Sunday, 10th November. His place, however, will be taken by Canon E. H. F. Campbell.

OPENING MEETINGS

Last night in the G.M.B. the opening meeting of the Law Society was held. Mr. H. L. McCreery (Sch.) read a paper on "Juvenile Delinquents and the Law." The speakers were District Justice Edward J. Little, Miss H. S. Chenevix, B.A.; the Rev. R. M. Gwynn, S.F.,T.C.D., and Dr. Joshua Baker. The opening meeting of the Gaelic Society will be held in the G.M.B. at 8.15 p.m. on Tuesday, November 5th. The Auditor, Seoirse Mac Aodhagain (Mod), B.A., will read a paper on "Tír agus Teanga." Frank Fahy (Ceann Comhairle na Dala), Ernest Blythe, Senator Michael Hayes and Kevin O'Shaughnessy, Sch. (Mod.), B.A., will speak to the paper. The chair will be taken by Professor O'Toole, President of the Society. The Society's medals for oratory and composition will be presented. At the opening meeting of the D.U. Elizabethan Society on Friday next Mr. Erskine Childers will speak on "Social Conditions After the War."

Mr. H. L. McCreery.

DEATH AFTER CHISEL WOUND

How a Dublin workman—Joseph Walsh, aged 36, of 95 Glencoy road, Whitehall—died a few days after a chisel on which he was fitting a handle had penetrated his abdomen, was described at an inquest yesterday.

None of his fellow workers at Messrs. Smith and Pearson's iron works in Ossory road, Dublin, saw the accident; one man had sharpened the chisel, when it was without a handle, a few minutes before the occurrence, and another saw Walsh holding the chisel (with a handle on it) just afterwards.

Dr. W. Lyster said that when Walsh was admitted to Jervis Street Hospital on Tuesday last he was suffering from a wound in the stomach. When asked how it had been caused, Walsh replied: "I was putting a handle on the chisel and the chisel slipped." The wound had damaged some of the internal organs, and death from pneumonia and heart failure, accelerated by the injuries, took place on Thursday.

The Dublin City Coroner (Dr. D. A. MacErlean) and a jury returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence.

Money for War

At an early stage in this war the British people were urged to save money. They also were urged not to save money. One Minister recommended them to buy as little as possible, and to put every available penny of their money into War Loan or War Savings Certificates. Another told them that any retrenchment in their customary expenditure would reduce industrial activity, and would throw so many men out of work: "Buy as you always bought," was his advice, "and keep the wheels of industry spinning." These varying exhortations, however, were delivered before the period of Blitzkrieg—during the long, dull months when British and French troops were standing at ease behind a Magnot Line which, as they imagined, was impregnable. The financing of the war was a less complicated affair in those days. Great Britain's back was not yet against the wall; there was no reason to suppose that she would find herself on the defensive against the assaults of an enemy far better equipped in the number both of machines and of men. Ministers could afford—or so they thought—to be contradictory in their counsels: the time was not yet come when the production of warlike materials must be speeded to the uttermost. There no longer is room for doubt, or hesitancy, or divergence of opinion. Yesterday Captain Crookshank, the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, told an audience at Grimsby that: "The demands for war material and war equipment are unlimited. It follows that we must cut all our normal consumption to the lowest possible." Rationing already has meant a considerable saving of money; a succession of Budgets has helped to reduce the consumption of what are called luxuries; the new Purchases Tax will reduce it even further. All these things have meant sacrifices, more or less severe, from the British public; and now additional sacrifices are demanded. Captain Crookshank asks the people to do some "positive" saving: to lay aside every halfpenny that can be spared out of their weekly or monthly earnings, and to lend it to the Government. It is pointless, he adds, merely to take money out of ordinary investments and transfer it to War Loan: that is not real saving. Real saving involves the expenditure of less money—which is the only kind of saving that matters.

"To be on a really good wicket," said Captain Crookshank, the British Government must borrow something like forty million pounds a week. Forty million pounds is a lot. It is rather more than the annual Budget of the twenty-six counties, and it represents an average of nearly one pound a week from every man, woman and child in Great Britain. Clearly, the Financial Secretary is giving a hint to the rich—of whom many still remain across the Channel; for there must be millions of poor families that could not spare a shilling, let alone a pound, from the weekly budget. His figures give us some idea of the terrible problem that confronts the United Kingdom. If the necessary savings cannot be effected, the choice is twofold: either there must be inflation, with all the discomfort and distress which it involves, or it will be impossible to pay for the war, and the national hope of victory, or even of survival, will languish. Little more than a hundred years ago wars could be fought while home life proceeded almost as usual: a little taxation might be imposed—a flea-bite in comparison with present rates: there might be an occasional shortage of some particular commodity; but there was not the constant demand for sacrifice, and still more sacrifice, from every citizen. Britain's purse is deep; yet she will have dug far into it before this war is over, and who can say what the effect will be upon her social and economic organisation during the years to come? Perhaps, her people—and the same thing applies to the people of other nations—will think less in terms of money, and more in terms of that real wealth of which money is merely the convenient—and sometimes misleading—symbol. However this war may end, people will have to work harder after it. Decades will be needed to repair the ruin which a single year of conflict has wrought; and we may take it that many of the pet precepts of the last few generations will disappear. In this respect the war may mingle good with its evil. If it engenders a new conception of decent, frugal comfort, a new respect for hard work, a new sense of community, something of value will have been achieved. Whether or not we escape the horror of direct embroilment in the war, we in Ireland are bound to suffer from its effects; and it may be that we shall become a better, more energetic and more self-reliant people in consequence. So let us hope.

The New Order

Mr. P. J. Southgate, M.A., Headmaster of St. Andrew's School, when he spoke at the school's annual prize day during the week, dealt with a side of education which in recent years has received all too little attention in this country and others. He spoke of the school not so much as a place where young people should be "crammed" with knowledge for examinations as one in which, through the training received there, a boy would develop character and a proper Christian attitude towards life. The cultivation of these qualities surely is the deeper purpose of educational training. Examinations are not to be despised. They are of immense importance to the individual, and are the only practical system by which a pupil's learning may be measured and tested; but they are of importance only to the individual. The other, and major, ideal of education has a heavy influence upon the whole future well-being of the community. What shall it profit any country to produce an abnormal number of outstandingly learned men, to be able to show examination results announcing ninety per cent. "passes," if its people and its growing generation have only book learning and possess none of the life-guiding qualities of a trained and shapened character? It is the want of this early training, we believe, that is responsible for so much "bad citizenship," and for the existence of so many social evils not only here, but in every country in the world at the present time. Almost every nation, after its own fashion, is seeking what is called a "new order": a "new deal," as they describe it in America, which will be for the greatest common good. Yet opinion is fiercely divided—divided to the point of war—on the question of what form the "new order" should take. If all the ambitions are directed sincerely towards the same goal there ought not to be, cannot be, any difference of principle; and the only possible principle that will react at all times to the common good, both of men and of nations, is contained in the tolerance, charity and universal good-will of Christian ethics. We believe, and every thinking man knows it to be true, that all the troubles of the world to-day, either in international relations or in the internal life of countries, are due to the fact that these guiding and unshakable principles of conduct have been forgotten or ignored.

It is futile to cry over past errors and failures. The Moving Finger, having writ, moves on, as Omar Khayyám says—

> "nor all thy Piety nor Wit > Shall lure it back to cancel half a line."

Yet all the "piety and wit" of the world can ensure, if the world wishes, that such errors and such failures shall not occur again. There is much talk now, as there was during and after the last great war, about plans for a secure and better future, in which all things would be ordered for the common good of mankind, and in which the selfish ambitions of one nation or one man would not be permitted to penalise any other nation or individual. If these plans are to be operated with any success at all, they must begin at the very root of the trouble. We believe that the root lies in the schools, which have become not places for the training of character according to Christian ethics, but institutions whose success and usefulness are judged entirely by examination results. The child of to-day will become the man of to-morrow; and until it is realised what an essential part of any "planning for a new order" must operate in the schools there can be no hope of real progress in the world. Immediately upon its access to power in Germany, the Nazi Party decided that a beginning must be made with the schools if the country was to be imbued thoroughly with National Socialist doctrines. The world has seen the effects of that decision and might learn much from the success of the method.

That Cyclist!

More Irish road accidents are attributed to pedal cycles than to any other class of vehicles, except private motor cars. The information is not surprising, since the number of bicycles in this country—particularly in the towns and cities—is very large. Dublin, indeed, enjoys a reputation for the popularity of cycling, and visitors have been heard to declare that they never saw so many bicycles anywhere else—though actually in Denmark, the Netherlands, and in one or two English cities the bicycle is used just as extensively as here in Ireland. It is questionable, however, if bicycles are ridden as recklessly in other places. The majority of adult cyclists are reasonably careful—except in the obvious reluctance of many of them to put their lights into use when the evenings shorten. They postpone as long as possible, and far longer than is safe or sensible, the use of their lamps; and even though, in consciousness of their lightlessness, they may keep close to their proper side of the road, it is principally due to the excellent illumination provided by the equipment of the modern motor vehicle and the care taken by motor drivers that more accidents do not befall the riders on two wheels. Juvenile riders, on the other hand, seem to be without any traffic sense. They ride three, four and five abreast; they make very little attempt to avoid the centre of the road; they often turn abreast across other traffic without giving any indication of their intentions. In some parts of the city they use old, brakeless machines in a spirit of suicidal abandon. They carry passengers on the cross-bars, and have such slight control of their bicycles that they sway dangerously into the paths of cars and lorries. The "Safety First" Association has endeavoured by propaganda and by advice to school-children to instil some sense of traffic responsibility into the youth of the country, but it has not had the measure of success that every well-meaning citizen would wish. So many other matters of grave importance have been added to the duties of the police that we hesitate to suggest to them that additional attention should be given to the reckless cyclist. Nevertheless, it is in the interest of the cyclist's own safety, in addition to that of other road users, that vigorous efforts should be made from time to time to warn the reckless rider of his responsibilities and of the consequences of his folly. A motorist who is apprehended by the police cannot conceal his identity. He can be traced through the number of his car, and he is compelled by law to possess a driving licence bearing his name and address. There is nothing, however, to identify the cyclist, and, if he gives a false name to the police officer who stops him, there may be slight chance of his subsequent discovery. For that reason it might be a safeguard for justice if the police had power, except in cases where an offender was able to establish his identity, to confiscate the machines of reckless cyclists until their case had been heard by a court of summary jurisdiction.

LONDON LETTER

LORD LINLITHGOW'S TERM OF OFFICE

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

THE extension of the period of office of Lord Linlithgow as Viceroy of India by one year will carry the date to April, 1942, by which time much will have happened. The news will be welcomed by all who have the best interests of India and the Empire at heart. The twelve months by which his period of office has been extended is likely to prove a year of the utmost importance, and the position at the end of it may be far different from now. The conference at Delhi now assembling, at which representatives of Britain and India, as well as of the Dominions and Colonies east of Suez, will gather to consider the manner in which the production of munitions and other commodities for the carrying on of the war may be expanded, may have far-reaching results, not only for the countries represented, but for the Empire as a whole. It is quite possible that the foundation is now being laid for many future conferences of a similar character, and that there may be regular meetings of representatives of the British Empire in the East. It is well that such important developments should have the experienced hand of Lord Linlithgow to guide them through their early stages.

Day and Night Raids

As the night raids on London are becoming less intense, those in the daylight are becoming more difficult to deal with, and it is evident that daylight raiding may be carried out on a larger scale. There have been no raids by large formations of bombers, which cost Germany so much in the way of lost machines a few weeks ago; but the practice of sending several formations of fast bomber-fighters, so that if the attack as a whole is countered some machines at least are able to get through the defences, is growing. These tactics were pursued to-day, but very few machines were able to elude the British patrols, and, where they were able to do so, they did not remain long over this country. It is realised that the methods of attack may be subject to much variation, and the Royal Air Force chiefs are making plans to meet whatever changes may be made. Although there have been several warnings in London to-day, they have been mainly of short duration, the raiders having been chased away by the fighter squadrons.

Turkey Prices

At a meeting in London English turkey producers have agreed that prices for the Christmas trade should be 2s. 6d. per pound for all hens and for cocks up to 18lb., and 2s 3d. per pound for cocks over 18lb. each. These prices are to be the maximum payments to producers for killed, plucked birds, and they are to include cost of delivery and wholesalers' commission. It is estimated that on this basis the retail price will be round about 2s. 10d. per pound, but these prices have no official authority, and in the meantime it is known that inquiries are being made by the Ministry of Food into the question, so that before Christmas some measure for the control of prices may be introduced which will strike a fair balance between what the producer receives and what the consumer pays. The prices fixed for English turkeys will have a direct bearing upon the price which Irish producers will receive, since English and Irish turkey prices usually move together; and this year, owing to the absence of continental supplies, there may be little variation between the prices for English and Irish birds.

Cigarettes

Inability to obtain certain popular brands of cigarettes at some tobacconists' shops has created an impression that there is a shortage of tobacco, but this is not the case. There is plenty of tobacco in the country to last for a long time, even should no more shipments be received, and further consignments are arriving from several sources. The shortage is purely local, and is due to distribution difficulties, for there is a great change taking place in the consumption of cigarettes in different districts. In places where new Army camps are established there is an immediate increase in the demand, which creates a shortage in the places from which the supplies for the troops are drawn. The distribution system has not yet been adjusted to the new conditions, which are also liable to change owing to more people being sent to country evacuation districts, but the stocks are quite equal to the demand in the country as a whole.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

"Cu Uladh"

The honour of life membership of the Coisde Gnotha, or executive of the Gaelic League, conferred on Senator P. T. MacGinley, must be a rare distinction, which its recipient will appreciate.

In history, as in life, he will be much better known by his pseudonym, "Cu Uladh" (Hound of Ulster, but also a common Christian name in the North in earlier centuries), than by any parliamentary title.

"Cu Uladh" is now in his 'eighties, and he has had a long career as sturdy Gael and forthright speaker and writer in Irish. He is still vigorous and active, and it is only a couple of years since he translated, and had produced in the Peacock Theatre, a one-act play on a factory-strike theme written by Mr. T. C. Murray.

He is a Donegal man by birth and of marked independence of speech and thought. He was, I am told, one of the founders of the second branch of the Gaelic League to be established—Belfast branch in the early 'nineties of last century.

This life-membership of its governing body is by no means the first signal honour paid to "Cu Uladh" by the Ard-Fheis, or annual convention, of the Gaelic League.

Stormy Days

Thirty-five years ago he was teaching Irish in what became famous as the Rory O'More Branch of the Gaelic League in Portarlington, and fierce controversy raged around the firm stand he and the branch made at the time.

From the pulpit the local P.P. had passed some remarks on the attendance of girl students at the League classes. The criticism, or attack, was regarded as so undeserved that from their places in the church "Cu Uladh" and a colleague, Mr. S. B. Roche, protested strongly, but politely and with dignity. Expulsions of two reverend gentlemen from the League followed, and very soon the issue was widened into a general accusation of anti-clericalism against the Gaelic League.

As the sequel showed, Gaelic Leaguers throughout the country boldly and manfully rallied to the Rory O'More Branch, especially after the exposure by Arthur Griffith and Mr. W. P. Ryan—himself now a veteran in his 'seventies—of a clerical circular designed to throw "Cu Uladh" and his friends off the Coisde Gnotha.

At the Ard-Fheis of 1906 the issue was decided emphatically. Even before the elections "Cu Uladh," on first rising to speak on some other question, was hailed with tremendous applause, in which a large number of priests who were delegates joined heartily.

In the elections for non-resident members of the executive "Cu Uladh" headed the poll, and his clerical opponent from Portarlington failed to get a seat. Others elected that year were the Rev. J. Hannay ("George A. Bermingham") and Mr. Stephen Gwynn, and the result was proclaimed as setting the seal on the non-sectarian character of the Gaelic League.

Dennis Barry

The part of Puck, mischief-making Robin-Good-Fellow, in the current production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Gaiety, is being played by that famous Shakespearean actor, Dennis Barry. Dennis Barry is a "trouper" in the best sense of the word, having played Shakespeare all over the world, in far-away Africa and Australia as well as at the Stratford Memorial Theatre. More recently he has worked in England with Matheson Lang, Nancy Price and Laurence Housman, and played with the Birmingham Repertory Theatre.

Puck must be one of his best parts, I think; for he brings to it not only his talent as an actor, but also his ballet training with Massine in Paris and his fine voice training with the Cologne Opera Company.

Micheal MacLiammoir and Hilton Edwards and Dennis Barry have long been admirers of each other's work, but this being the first time their mutual careers have enabled them to join forces in the same play is something of an occasion. It is also something of a coincidence; for it so happens that the last time Dennis Barry played the particular part of Puck was in the Gaiety Theatre with Sir Frank Benson's Company in 1934.

Mr. John Cudahy

Mr. John Cudahy appears to be having a busy year. He left the American Legation in Dublin last January to become United States Minister to Belgium. After that country had been invaded he returned to America—causing something in the nature of a "sensation" by an interview which he gave on the way. Now I hear that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination of Senator for Wisconsin.

As Wisconsin is his native State, he should stand a very good chance of election, and I understand that he is representing a group of Democrats who are regarded as being very closely allied to the present occupant of the White House.

Incidentally, another piece of news I heard recently—I should say "saw," because it came in the form of a photograph—was that Mr. Cudahy lost a three-hundred dollar bet to Brigadier-General E. M. Watson, one of President Roosevelt's secretaries. Mr. Cudahy had wagered that the President would not seek a third term of office.

Moynihan

I do not think, writes a correspondent, referring to my recent paragraph, that the alleged pronunciation of Moynihan in England as "Munn-yi-han" is so wrong after all. It seems to be nearer the Irish "Mynn-a-kawin" than the usual "Móy-nihan." Moynihan is still pronounced "Moynikan" by some Dublin folk.

It is not surprising that there should be a different and more correct pronunciation in England, as many Irish names were Anglicised fairly correctly by emigrants, and, perhaps because they were surrounded by foreign names, these Irish names did not alter. At home, however, with the passage of time, pronunciations became more genteel. Daly, Duggan, Dea, Reilly, Whelan, for instance, are still Dawley, Dúgan, Day, Rawley and Whalen in America.

QUIDNUNC.

25 YEARS AGO

From the Irish Times, November 2, 1915.

German Casualties at Loos.

Sir John French reports that, except for a heavy German bombardment of the area east of Ypres on Friday, the artillery on both sides had been less active, owing to wet and misty weather. Returns of casualties for seven German battalions which took part in the Loos fighting show that the losses averaged 80 per cent. of their strength.

The French afternoon report states that in Champagne the fighting continued on Sunday evening in the region of Tahure, without change in the respective positions.

"Why We Raid London."

The Daily Mail Correspondent at The Hague telegraphs: All the leading German newspapers publish an obviously inspired article explaining the reasons for the Zeppelin raids on England, and justifying the killing of civilians as a measure of "military necessity." The Lokalanzieger states that the purpose of the raids is to destroy the military establishments and the railway facilities for the transport of troops, and to imperil London, which is described as the chief centre from which the British Army derives its support. A number of journals throw out vague hints that the air-raids on London are soon to be renewed on a greater scale.

WAYSIDE STORIES

A series of Sunday evening addresses on the topic of the Wayside Stories of Our Lord is to be given by the Rev. R. Lee Cole, M.A., B.D., in the Rathmines Methodist Church, Charleston road, beginning to-morrow evening, at 7 o'clock. It is intended to translate into modern phraseology and meaning the old stories of the Gospel.

NEWS SUMMARY

Many tons of jute were destroyed by a fire which occurred in the premises of Irish Ropes, Ltd., at Newbridge, County Kildare, yesterday. In addition to the Military Fire Brigade from the Curragh Camp, sections of the Dublin Fire Brigade and the Auxiliary Fire Service assisted in subduing the flames.

A British convoy was heavily shelled in the Straits of Dover yesterday by German long-range guns on the French coast. Three batteries fired over 100 shells in an hour and a half, but when the shelling had ceased not one of the vessels appeared to have been hit.

It was claimed in London last night that nine raiding 'planes had been destroyed during the day. Six British machines were lost, but the pilots of two are safe. Raiding machines appeared over many parts of England and Scotland during the day and night.

The Italians are attempting to force the eastern gap in the Peristeri chain of mountains, which opens up the way to Florina and Salonika. The Greeks are reported to be holding their positions.

For the first time in its history Naples was bombed for nearly an hour by the R.A.F. on Thursday night. Oil refineries and storage tanks were set on fire, railway junctions damaged, and an A.A. battery silenced. To reach the city the attackers had to make a flight from England of 1,300 miles.

ITALIANS FORCING KEY MOUNTAIN GAP

GREEKS HOLD ROAD TO SALONIKA

Turkey and Yugoslavia to Remain Neutral

THE Italians are attempting to force the Eastern gap in the Peristeri chain of mountains, according to Yugoslav observers at Stenje, near the confluence of the Yugoslav-Greek-Albanian frontier. If they succeeded in forcing this gap and reaching Florina, on the Monastir-Salonika road and railway, the way would lie open to Kastoria, and thence towards Larissa, in the South-West, and Kozame, in the South-East.

The Greeks, however, are apparently firmly holding the Bigle heights, which cover the Pisobar gorge, the key position on the only road through the mountains which it is possible for motorised units to use.

Heavy gunfire in the neighbourhood of Koritza yesterday indicates that the Italians have been bombarding those important Greek positions on the flanks of the gigantic Bigle Mountain in the hope of freeing the road through the Pisobar gorge.

No reports have been received in Belgrade of an Italian advance.

President Ineunu yesterday said that Turkey's attitude of non-belligerency should not be an obstacle in the maintenance of friendly relations with all countries. He disclosed that relations with Russia were much improved. In Istanbul it is emphasised that Turkey will fight should Bulgaria join in the war on the side of the Axis. Any German attempt to move through Bulgaria will meet with Turkish resistance.

A formal announcement of neutrality by the Yugoslav Government was made last night.

TWO AIR RAIDS ON ATHENS

The Greek forces holding the Pisobar sector are the famous white-kilted Evsones—the Ipirotes celebrated by Byron—who are the crack troops of the Greek Army. They are being attacked by the Alpini, reputed to be the crack Italian troops.

All the country in this region from the present front as far as Florina is particularly rugged.

RAIDS ON GREEK TOWNS

Italy ordered her warplanes into the air in greater numbers yesterday, and there were raids in the neighbourhood of Athens, Salonika, Corfu and Larissa.

In Athens the alert was sounded at 10.40 and lasted half an hour. Five Italian 'planes were seen circling the western part of the city, followed by bursting anti-aircraft shells. At 11.50 another alert was sounded and lasted half an hour. Anti-aircraft fire was again heard.

There was no bombing of Athens itself. The Italian 'planes, which came from the direction of the Dodecanese Islands, dropped their bombs in the region of Phaleron and St. George's Bay, West of the Piræus.

FLYING-BOAT SHOT DOWN

Two Italian fighter 'planes shot down a British Sunderland flying boat in the Central Mediterranean yesterday morning, according to a correspondent of the Official Italian Agency "on the aeronautical front." The crew on board numbered more than ten, he says, and alleges that the machine went down in flames after a short battle.

WORLD COMMENT

The Axis Powers are making every effort to find a pacific solution to the Italo-Greek conflict that will safeguard the most elementary principles of Greek independence, telegraphs the Berlin Correspondent of Arriba, quoted by P.A.

"The stubborn attitude of Athens," the Correspondent adds, "will probably compel the Reich to take up an attitude as always in accordance with Rome."

Commenting on the possibility of German mediation between Italy and Greece, the Rome Correspondent of the Basler Nachrichten says that Germany may be obliged to break off diplomatic relations with Greece.

The Berlin Correspondent of the same paper says that hopes formerly expressed in Berlin that the Greek Government might be induced to make peace have now been completely abandoned. Nevertheless, he adds that a section of German opinion still holds that alleged Greek internal differences may bring a decision quicker than Italian arms.

THE SLOWER PACE

The Stockholm Dagens Nyheter compares the methods of Hitler and Mussolini, describing the German leader as "a man of blitz action" and Mussolini as one who prefers a slower pace. After citing the cautious policy of Italy in all her war operations to date the newspaper points out that she is proceeding mildly in her campaign against Greece "not executing terror bombing" and not attempting to use adjacent small States as jumping off bases.

In the case of Yugoslavia the Axis States are respecting her neutrality, although it means sacrificing certain strategical advantages, the paper adds, and goes on—"The attitude of Germany is strange. While some wonder whether all her camouflage conceals big plans, others suggest that the Axis States have miscalculated, possibly having believed that Greece would capitulate without fighting. All we know is that Italy's action is not a storm advance, and that it is compatible with a desire not to set the whole of the Near East ablaze."

REPORTED OFFER TO BULGARIA

Rome, it appears, is seeking to induce Bulgaria to remain neutral in the Italo-Greek conflict—at least, for the present—in order to avoid involving Turkey, says the Rome correspondent of Stockholms Tidningen. Bulgaria would later receive territorial compensation as a reward, he adds.

Reports from Sofia, according to the correspondent, suggest that Bulgaria is satisfied with this rôle.

Rome diplomatic circles are reported to find it "quite natural" for Germany to maintain diplomatic relations with Greece. The German Minister's continued presence in Athens is considered significant, indicating the retention of a channel of communication between Rome and Athens.

BRITISH NAVY'S VITAL ROLE

The vital rôle being played by the British Navy in the Mediterranean and elsewhere is emphasised in Trud, the Soviet trade union organ, discussing the war developments in Greece and elsewhere. Italy's entrance into the war did not take by surprise the British Navy, which adopted all the necessary measures to enforce the blocade, says the paper, adding:—"The strategic position of Italy, cut off from ocean communications, is much more serious than that of her ally."

The paper says that Italy is trying to re-establish her contact with the outside world by a drive towards the Suez Canal from Libya, but, "apart from the difficulties of the terrain, the carrying out of this plan is also prevented by the dominance of the Royal Navy in the Mediterranean."

TURKEY STANDS WITH BRITAIN

PRESIDENT SEES LONG WAR

President Ismet Ineunu yesterday reaffirmed the Turkish alliance with Britain, and said that the two countries were studying together the situation which had arisen in the Balkans. He was speaking at the opening of the Turkish National Assembly.

He said that Turkey's attitude of non-belligerency should not be an obstacle in the maintenance of friendly relations with all countries.

"At a time when England is carrying on under difficulties her heroic struggle for her very existence, it is our duty to reaffirm our friendship and alliance with her," he said, adding that no change had taken place in Turkish policy towards the present war since the opening of the previous session.

"Our neighbour and friend, Greece, has, unfortunately, been dragged into war. Together with our Ally, Great Britain, we are studying the situation which has arisen," said the President.

Passing to foreign policy, he continued:—"The European wars developments are such that this tragedy may quite possibly extend beyond the confines of Europe and assume the proportions of a world-wide conflagration. During the last year a great number of free and independent countries have had to submit to foreign invasion; but the attacks directed against Britain following the defeat of France have met with obstinate resistance—and this fact has led the war into a new phase.

"It seems likely that this new phase will be of long duration, and the suffering and misery of mankind will continue for a long time to come. It is impossible not to be deeply moved by this dark prospect, not to note with great sorrow and pain this retrogression of civilisation.

FRIENDS WITH RUSSIA

The relations of mutual confidence with the U.S.S.R., said the President, which date from as far back as twenty years ago, have, after experiencing difficulties, the blame for which cannot be attributed either to Turkey or to Russia, been restored to their normal friendship. It is with satisfaction I note that, amidst the vicissitudes of the world, Russo-Turkish relations represent a factor of intrinsic value. And our two countries mean to perpetuate this fact independent of all other influences. Considered in this light, we are convinced that this policy will be as fruitful for both parties to-morrow as it was yesterday, and that it will serve the interests of the two countries without harming anyone.

The President having said that the bonds which united Turkey and England are solid and unbreakable, concluded: "We see again more clearly than ever that the right of nations to live is based on one foundation more solid than thousands of other important measures, and that foundation is self-sacrifice."

YUGOSLAVIA TO BE NEUTRAL

A formal announcement of neutrality by the Yugoslav Government was made in Belgrade yesterday. The declaration reads:—

"Long before the outbreak of the present war in Europe Yugoslavia actively pursued in the Balkans and the Danube Basin a constructive policy, in which all her efforts were directed at establishing friendly relations with all neighbouring countries and, above all, with the two great neighbouring Powers, Germany and Italy.

"When the conflict broke out Yugoslavia immediately declared her strict neutrality, dependent on no other condition than respect of her independence and the security of her frontiers.

"In loyally pursuing such a policy Yugoslavia best served the vital interests of her people and at the same time fulfilled her neighbourly duty—which has more than once been the subject of open and emphatic appreciation on the part of Berlin and Rome.

"The conflict between Italy and Greece—a conflict which Yugoslavia deeply regrets since she has friendly relations with both countries—has brought the war to the Balkans. It is, therefore, comprehensible that Yugoslavia should follow the new situation closely while devoting all her efforts to the maintenance of peace. Given the attitude hitherto maintained, Yugoslavia hopes that her interests will not be threatened from any side by further developments."

GREEK MINISTER'S CHARGE

M. Simopoulas, Greek Minister in London, last night said that the accusations levelled against Greece by Italy constituted a shameless lie intended to cover a shameful act. There was no other country which had kept its neutrality more strictly and honestly than Greece.

Speaking of the torpedoing by the Italians of the vessel, Helle, M. Simopoulos said that full evidence had been furnished of "the heroic deed of the Christian Italian Navy that treacherously sank a vessel which, adorned with flags, was anchored at Tenos on the annual pilgrimage of a religious festival.

GREEK TROOPS INTO ALBANIA

SALONIKA AND CORFU BOMBED

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

ATHENS, Friday Night.

Greek infantry to-day launched a violent charge against Italian troops and captured a mountain, the peak of which is 4,995 feet high. This victory brings Greek troops on to Albanian soil for the first time. From the heights of this mountain the Greeks look over a short plain, and with long-range artillery they would be able to bombard the town of Koritza.

The capture was not at first intended, it is learned, but with the Greeks in such fine fettle the attack was allowed to proceed.

Two Italian 'planes were brought down on the Northern front to-day, and there is a possibility that a third was brought down in the Pindus sector.

The town of Candia, in Crete, was bombarded this afternoon, and according to early reports six persons were killed and ten injured.

The woman president of the Salonica Red Cross said that the casualties would be at least 59 dead and 84 wounded. The population seemed numbed by the suddenness and wanton character of the raid. Most of the casualties were among those who had not taken shelter quickly enough.

At Corfu five persons were killed and 26 injured.

Larissa, an important centre of communications, was bombed at noon by nine 'planes, which dropped 32 missiles. One soldier and four civilians were killed, and two soldiers and a gendarme were injured.

The Italians also attempted to bomb an important bridge on the Metzovo-Kalambaka road, crossing the Pindus Range.

General Metaxas, in a radio message to the people of Patras, which has been bombed, said: "The blood of the children of Patras will be revenged by the whole race."

BRITISH ATTACKS

A Salonika report received in New York says that British bombers have attacked Tirana and several ports in Albania.

A Greek High Command communiqué says that in the Epirus region Italian infantry and tanks were repulsed and prisoners taken. Greek 'planes have bombed and machine-gunned Italian troops.

Rome claims a further advance in a two-point attack aimed at Janina and Florina.

British naval officers have arived at Athens and in a number of the Greek islands, it is learned to-day. They are working at full speed preparing for co-operation with the Greeks.

AIR BATTLE WITH ITALIANS

EIGHT CLAIMED SHOT DOWN

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

CAIRO, Friday.

Four Italian bombers were shot down and four fighters destroyed by the R.A.F. when a large enemy force attempted to attack targets in the Mersa Matruh area yesterday. In addition, another four enemy 'planes were so badly knocked about that it is unlikely they ever reached home.

This is announced in to-night's R.A.F. communiqué, which states:—

"A large force of enemy bombers of the S 79 type, escorted by a dozen fighters of the CR 42 type, attempted to attack targets in the Mersa Matruh area yesterday. R.A.F. fighters immediately engaged the enemy, and in the ensuing battle four S 79's were shot down and four CR 42's destroyed. In addition, four more enemy aircraft were so damaged that it is unlikely they reached their bases.

"During a battle two of our fighters collided, but the pilots landed safely by parachute. One of our fighters was shot down, and one last seen engaging three S 79's making for home has so far not returned to its base.

"R.A.F. bombers raided Gambut, Libya, where enemy aircraft were dispersed on the ground. Two of them were definitely destroyed, one other probably, and several others severely damaged by bomb splinters.

"In a high level attack on Menastir, Libya, bombs fell across the aerodrome, demolishing one hut and one aircraft. Other bombs fell among dispersed motor transport.

"During the night of October 31 Tobruck was raided and bombs fell in the target area, but it was impossible to ascertain the full extent of the damage owing to weather conditions. In addition, numerous reconnaissances were carried out over a wide area of Libya."

COMPULSORY TILLAGE ORDER

COMING DEBATE IN THE DAIL

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

The decision of Judge Gleeson at Longford in respect of the Compulsory Tillage Order will add interest to the debate in the Dail on the motion of Deputies Belton and Cogan, by which it is proposed to annul the order for the 1940-'41 season. This order is at present on the table of the Oireachtas, and, unless a motion to annul it is passed within twenty-one days on which the House sits, it will become law. In the circumstances it is probable that the Government will afford an early opportunity to discuss the motion. The Dail will meet on Wednesday, and will probably have sufficient business for a two days' sitting.

FRENCH COLLABORATION WITH GERMANY

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

VICHY, Friday.

The Cabinet to-day unanimously approved the discussions of M. Laval, the Vice-Premier, and M. Bouthillier, the Minister of Finance, with the German civil and military authorities in Paris to settle the details of the Franco-Axis collaboration in Europe. A communiqué said the Cabinet expressed "confident unanimity, grouping all the Ministers behind Marshal Petain and M. Laval" in the negotiations with the Germans.

Government circles said that the Ministers, and especially Laval, were "extremely satisfied" with the course of the negotiations, which were confined to economic problems, with no question of territorial problems.

JAPANESE LINER AT GALWAY

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

GALWAY, Friday.

The 10,000 tons Japanese liner, Husimi Maru, which is on her way from Lisbon to Tokyo, dropped anchor in Galway Bay at 6.15 this evening. She is to embark 170 Japanese nationals from England, probably on Wednesday next, to take them home. They will arrive in Galway on Tuesday, it is expected, and will embark the following day or Thursday.

Among the 41 passengers on board when the liner arrived was Miss Mary Maine, of Coleraine, who is going to Dublin. When she came ashore she told an Irish Times representative that she had gone to Spain in August, 1939, intending to spend three months holidays there. On the outbreak of the war she decided to remain. Hearing of the departure of the Husimi Maru from Lisbon to Ireland she flew from Madrid to the Portuguese capital. There she found several other Irish citizens who were intending to sail home on the liner. Things were settled with the Japanese shipping authorities and the Irish Government, and permission given them to sail to Galway. When the liner was leaving she was surprised to find that the other Irish citizens were not among the pasengers, and she did not know why they had not sailed.

The embarking of the passengers on Wednesday or Thursday next will be superintended by Mr. K. Ichihiashi, Japanese Vice-Consul in Dublin, and Mr. H. Kohno, Japanese Vice-Consul in Liverpool, will also be present to see about the delivery of some property he is sending home.

When the liner arrived, Mr. J. M. Leech, secretary of the Galway Bay Steam Company, agents for the N.Y.K. Line, and Customs and immigration officials went out and boarded her. Mr. Leech told the passengers that they would be allowed to go ashore during the liner's stay off Galway.

Arrangements are being made to supply her with provisions and water, and 700 tons of coal will be taken out on the Dun Aengus, the Aran Islands steamer, to replenish the liner's bunkers.

SUNK

FOUR SHIPS WITH OVER 100 LIVES

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

OTTAWA, Friday.

The sinking of the British merchantman, Eurymedon, was disclosed to-day with the announcement by the Navy Minister (Mr. Macdonald) that a Canadian destroyer had rescued her survivors. Mr. Macdonald did not reveal when and where the Eurymedon had been sunk, but said that she remained afloat for three days after she was struck by two torpedoes, which killed 34 persons.

Mr. Macdonald also disclosed that the same destroyer rescued people from the s.s. Sularia, which was also torpedoed. The Sularia sank in twelve minutes.

NEW YORK, Friday.

Marine sources stated to-day that the British cargo steamer Matheran (7,853 tons) has been sunk in the Atlantic by German action.

100 DEAD IN NORWEGIAN SHIP

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

Considerably more than 100 passengers perished, according to information from Norway, when the Norwegian steamer Ragnhild, as already reported, was sunk by a mine, says the Norwegian Telegraph Agency. The vessel which was used in the coastal passenger traffic, had more than 300 persons on board, according to this report.

An official statement issued in Norway, the Norwegian Agency adds, states that most of the passengers were rescued, but this has found little credence.

SUPPLY SHIP ATTACKED

During a reconnaissance in Southern Norway waters, states the British Air Ministry, Hudsons of the Coastal Command effectively bombed a camouflaged 3,000 tons supply ship heavily laden with cargo. After a direct hit amidships white smoke appeared and part of the cargo was seen in the water.

The reconnaissance of the occupied coast was strongly resisted by ground defences and fighter aircraft.

One of the Hudsons, which went on to attack an anti-aircraft ship, is missing, but the rest of the flight completed their task successfully.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

CHOOSING THE PRESIDENT

In a leading article under the above heading The Times remarks to-day:—Next Tuesday's vote of the people of the United States will determine whether Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Wendell Willkie is to be the next President of the United States. So much depends for the world upon the personality of the man who will control the executive authority and conduct the policy of that great country for the next four years that, during the election campaign, the tremendous drama of the battle of Britain cannot altogether monopolise attention even on this side of the Atlantic, and in the United States this struggle between the two candidates has tended, naturally, to overshadow all other news, though it has not diminished the warm and poignant sympathy with which the American people have watched the resistance of Great Britain to the German assaults, and applauded the exploits of the Royal Air Force. Nor has it, as seemed almost inevitable at one time, affected the attitude of the American Government. It has caused no stinting of the help given to this country, no slackening of the pace with which the United States is building up the defences needed for the security of the Western Hemisphere.

A few weeks ago Mr. Roosevelt's re-election seemed practically certain after all. Later, however, there has, undoubtedly, been a reaction. Mr. Willkie has conducted his campaign with immense vigour and pertinacity, and has made a great impression upon the electors in many of the pivotal States. He was able to make headway the more easily because the President had held aloof from the contest until a few days ago, remained at Washington to conduct the urgent business of the country, and left it to his subordinates to state his case to the electors. Warned of the risk he was running, he has since entered the fray. He has delivered three powerful speeches rebutting the charges brought against him, and carrying the war into the enemy's camp. He is to make two more speeches before the election, and the result of the election may depend upon the effect which they produce.

Whoever is elected, whether Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Willkie, will have to carry a burden for the next four years which few will envy him. He will, however, have the support of a practically unanimous people in giving to the victims of aggression all the help of the kind that they need most.

VON PAPEN GOES TO BERLIN

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

BUCHAREST, Friday.

German circles in Bucharest reported negotiations for a new agreement between Germany and the Soviet, chiefly concerning Balkan and Near East problems. Von Papen is known to be connected with the proposed pact, it was added. Von Papen has continued his journey to Berlin to-day.

SHOT DOWN OVER LONDON

Two Raiders Spin To Earth

NINE DESTROYED DURING THE DAY

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

THERE were three daytime alerts in the London area yesterday. During one of them hundreds of onlookers saw an exciting "scrap" as British fighters overtook a formation of raiders. Cheer upon cheer went up when two of the raiding 'planes were seen spinning towards the earth.

MANY RAIDERS

Outside the capital raiders were reported over the east, north-east and south-east coasts, the Midlands, the Merseyside area and the east coast of Scotland. An East coast raider which dropped bombs near a village and killed some cattle is reported to have come down in the sea off Orford Ness, Suffolk, apparently damaged by gunfire.

It was also reported that a raider which machine-gunned another East Anglian village was seen to be losing height as it sped seawards, pursued by British fighters.

A number of attempts by raiding 'planes to reach London from the south-east area were frustrated by the R.A.F. The Press Association understands that in one of these attempts 50 raiders crossed the coast at Dungeness to be intercepted by Fighters. About 20 got through, only to be driven back before reaching the capital.

NIGHT ATTACKS ON CAPITAL

Soon after the night alert in the London area raiding 'planes flying at a great height dropped a number of flares over the capital. A heavy barrage of A.-A. guns broke out, and several of the flares were shot down. The 'planes did not wait to drop their bombs, but fled through heavy gunfire.

From a suburb on the outskirts the London barrage appeared to be as heavy as any of the blitz.

A little later a succession of German machines, flying at intervals of a few minutes, came over evidently attempting to bomb the areas where flares had fallen. Some of the 'planes had the sound of fighter bombers. As they dived they were heavily engaged by the anti-aircraft fire. One flare was shot down by machine-gun fire.

OIL BOMB DAMAGE

A low circling 'plane dropped three oil bombs on one London district. One hit the side of a cinema, but caused no casualties. The second crashed into the roadway outside a small café next to another cinema, shattering the front of the shop. 'Bus drivers and conductors helped to put out the flames with sand. The third fell between large blocks of flats and started a fire which was quickly put out, but it is feared that some people were hurt.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT

The British Air Ministry communiqué last night stated:—

"Eight enemy aircraft have been destroyed to-day. Six of our fighters have been lost, but the pilots of two are safe."

The Air Ministry afterwards pointed out that the eight aircraft announced as destroyed in the communiqué are in addition to the one reported in the earlier communiqué, making a total of nine so far yesterday.

IN THE PROVINCES

ITALIANS TURN BACK

Anti-aircraft defences chased out to sea a number of Italian fighters which were over the south-east coast during the afternoon. The machines looked as if they might have been Albas—small-wing biplanes. Two which appeared over one coast town at a height of about 10,000 feet made off over the Channel as gunners got in some accurate bursts near them.

Soon after the alert a Thames Estuary area experienced one of its most lively raids. Aircraft came over in relays, dropping flares. One of the heaviest barrages yet put up in the area greeted the raiders, and many times the sky seemed full of bursting shells. A number of high explosive bombs were dropped. They fell on marshes, doing no damage. Scores of incendiaries were also dropped.

Women and girls tackled incendiaries from a Molotov bread-basket which fell on a residential area in South England, and fires were quickly out.

'PLANE FALLS FIVE MILES

A.A. gunners shot down in flames a single-seater ME. 109 fighter-bomber, flying nearly five miles high, over Dover yesterday. The German raider was only a white speck in the clear blue sky when the gunners opened fire. After firing a few rounds, the battery scored a direct hit, and the ME. spiralled down in flames from 24,000 ft. into the sea.

At almost exactly the same time an air duel was going on between a Hurricane and a Dornier only 50 ft. above the water. A sergeant pilot had been patrolling off the East coast with two Hurricanes, which had gone home, when he sighted below him a Dornier 17 bomber skimming over the sea at 50 ft. Chasing the bomber for ten miles, the Hurricane caught it up and fired several bursts at close range. When the sergeant had to make for his base, the Dornier was last seen far out over the North Sea limping for home severely damaged.

FIVE MORE BOMBERS DOWN

Shortly after 1.30 this morning it was officialy announced in London that five German bombers had been brought down during last night. This is the largest number destroyed on any night since the war on Britain began.

NEW SCHOOL OF PHYSICS

PROFESSOR WHITTAKER'S APPOINTMENT

The following statement was issued by the Government Information Bureau yesterday:—

"The President, acting on the advice of the Government, to-day appointed Professor E. T. Whittaker to be an appointed member of the Governing Board of the School of Theoretical Physics in the new Dublin Institute for Advanced Studies.

"Professor Whittaker is Professor of Mathematics in Edinburgh University and a Director of the Mathematical Institute; Member of the Pontifical Academy of Sciences; Wrangler, First Smith's Prizeman and Fellow of Trinity College, Camb.; Royal Astronomer of Ireland and Andrews Professor of Astronomy, University of Dublin, 1906-'12.

SHELLED FOR AN HOUR

GERMAN ATTACK ON A CONVOY

BRITISH vessels were heavily shelled in the Straits of Dover yesterday afternoon by German long-range guns mounted on the French coast. Three German batteries were in action, firing six-gun salvoes. One German battery was beside Cap Griz Nez lighthouse, another near Calais, to the east of the Dover Patrol Memorial, and the third was midway between these two on a cliff-top.

Shells burst in the sea all round the ships, but they steamed steadily on their course westwards through the Straits.

COAST SHAKEN

Visability was exceptionally clear and thousands of people who watched the bombardment from the Kent cliffs saw the six gun-flashes from each of three batteries on the opposite shore, followed by great columns of water shooting up from the sea, where the shells burst.

The whole Channel coast was shaken by the reverberation of the explosions. Dover's new shelling warning—a double wail of the air-raid sirens—was sounded.

Nearly a hundred shells had been fired after three quarters of an hour, when the bombardment was still in progress.

During the shelling A.-A. guns on the English side of the Channel opened fire on a Dornier bomber, escorted by two Messerschmitt fighters, which flew down the Channel. Shells burst near the bomber, which swung away towards the French coast and made no attempt to attack the British vessels.

The explosions of the bursting shells could be heard in Fleet street, London, over the telephone while a reporter was 'phoning the story during the bombardment.

The bombardment ceased after an hour and a half, when the German artillery had fired over 100 shells.

Not one of the vessels appeared to have been hit.

ATTACK BY AIRCRAFT

An hour later the vessels were attacked by thirteen dive bombers about three miles from the shore. The bombers, swooping out of the clear blue sky, circled low over the ships and each dropped three bombs. The aircraft then came over again and launched a second attack. A.-A. guns sent up a heavy curtain of fire, which drove them off, and they fled towards the French coast.

German long-range guns also opened up and fired several shells at the vessels. A squadron of Spitfires arrived and patrolled the Channel coast, while the vessels continued on their way.

The dive-bombers were escorted by seven Messerschmitt fighters. The German long-range guns continued shelling spasmodically until after nightfall.

BIG GERMAN CLAIMS

LOSSES IN TWO CONVOYS

BERLIN, Friday.

Direct hits on a destroyer and three merchant ships in a surprise attack on what the Germans describe as a strongly-protected British convoy are claimed in a statement issued by the official German News Agency to-day.

The Convoy, says the Agency, was attacked off Great Yarmouth by a German 'plane "taking full advantage of the weather conditions."

The attack, it is added, was carried out despite heavy anti-aircraft fire from the warships and other ships in the convoy.

Before the 'plane disappeared, the statement concludes, the convoy was seen to be scattered.

"German dive bombers scored another success off Sheerness when they sank nine ships of a total tonnage of 27,000 sailing in convoy.

"Three further ships, totalling 6,000 tons, including a light cruiser, were badly damaged by direct hits."—(P.A. War Special.)

THAMES ESTUARY CONVOY

ATTACK BEATEN OFF

Spitfires shot down into the Thames Estuary yesterday afternoon a Junkers 87 dive bomber, the first to visit these shores for six weeks, states the Air Ministry News Service. "After a lull the German Air Force to-day went back to its old tactics of raiding shipping and harbours. The most important attack of the day was directed against a convoy off the Thames Estuary, but the raiding Junkers airmen were so harassed by R.A.F. fighters and anti-aircraft gunfire that their aim was spoiled and the bombs fell harmlessly into the water.

"A squadron of Spitfires was the spearhead of the British counter-attack on the convoy raiders."

THE JUVENILE DELINQUENT

PROBLEM OF CAUSE AND TREATMENT

"JUVENILE Delinquents and the Law" was the subject of the inaugural address read by the Honorary Secretary, Mr. H. Lewis McCreery, Scholar, last night at the opening meeting of the Dublin University Law Society in the Graduates' Memorial Building of Trinity College, Dublin. In dealing with children, he said, the principle should, in all cases, be reformation, for retributive punishment was agreed to be inadmissible.

Defective education and want of employment were, undoubtedly, two of the chief causes contributing to juvenile delinquency. Owing to bad housing, overcrowding and parental neglect, many children were already corrupted in mind before going to school at all.

The treatment of the young delinquent, he said, was possibly the most important question with which the law had to deal.

Proposing a vote of thanks to the Honorary Secretary, the Senior District Justice, Mr. E. J. Little, said that for three years and more he had been presiding for hours every Friday in the Children's Court, and he had had before his eyes there complete evidence of what the so-called compulsory education in this country amounted to. He was glad that one man, and one man alone, had had the courage to tell the people of this country what that meant. The Minister for Education, speaking at Tipperary on October 13th, had told them that 80,000 children were absentees every day during the whole year.

FAULTY LEGISLATION

The fault of the School Act of 1892 had been that its enforcement was left in the hands of local committees, which met only ten times a year, and children need only be in school 150 days out of about 220. The Act of 1926 had no mention of compulsory attendance in the title, although it was a School Attendance Act, but in it was repeated the mistake of the earlier Act, in making local committees the enforcing authorities in Dublin, Cork, Waterford, Limerick and Dun Laoghaire, while throughout the rest of the country the Civic Guards were to be the enforcing authority. Could anything be more misconceived or ill-guided? He was convinced from his experience that there was no remedy in this country for juvenile delinquency until they had full and comprehensive primary education. He also advocated the immediate introduction of an amending Act.

Seconding the motion, the Rev. R. M. Gwynn, S.F.,T.C.D., said that there were too few boys' clubs in this country. He appealed to people like barristers to take this work up as a hobby. It was immensely interesting from the psychological viewpoint.

The motion was carried.

ROOSEVELT WINDS UP CAMPAIGN

Bitter Criticism of Opponents

"UNHOLY ALLIANCE" REFERENCE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BROOKLYN (NEW YORK), Friday.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, opening the final phase of his election campaign here to-night, declared that the Republican Party was being backed by an "unholy alliance" of extreme reactionaries and extreme Radicals seeking "dictatorial ends."

The people, he said, should remember "what the collaborative understanding between Communism and Nazi-ism has done to the processes of democracy abroad."

"Something evil" was happening in the United States, he declared, when Republican supporters put a full-page advertisement against his Administration in the Communist newspaper Daily Worker, and when "vast quantities of Republican campaign literature are distributed by organisations which make no secret of their admiration for the dictatorship form of government."

Mr. Roosevelt said:—"I am fighting to keep this nation prosperous and at peace. I am fighting to keep our people out of foreign wars and to keep foreign systems of Governments out of our own United States. I am fighting for these great and good causes. I am fighting to defend them against the power and might of those who now rise up to challenge them, and I shall not stop fighting."

WALL STREET NARROWS ODDS

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

NEW YORK, Friday.

Political temperature soared almost to fever heat in America to-night as keen Wall Street observers, noting every phase in the hard-fought historic Presidential campaign, narrowed the odds on Roosevelt retaining the Presidency to 5 to 4.

Almost simultaneously President Roosevelt announced that, in view of the international situation, he would probably return to Washington on Sunday from Cleveland, instead of going immediately to Hyde Park, where he is due to speak on Monday.

All the months of hard-planned campaigning by Roosevelt and Willkie will end on Tuesday, when America casts her preference for the next four years. Even the most optimistic admit that the contest will be close, and there is no longer much talk of "landslide votes" for either side.

This was reflected in various recent polls held by newspapers and big independent organisations. The Gallup survey gave Roosevelt 52 per cent. of the popular vote.

NAPLES BOMBED FOR FIRST TIME

R.A.F.'s 3,000 Miles Flight

IN a flight of nearly 3,000 miles Royal Air Force 'planes of the Bomber Command on Thursday night dealt heavy blows in Southern Italy.

For the first time in history Naples was bombed in the first attack on that part of Italy by the Royal Air Force. The attack lasted three-quarters of an hour, during which an oil refinery and storage tanks were fired, rail junctions bombed and defensive batteries silenced.

Naples is about 1,300 miles from Britain.

FIRES STARTED

The British Air Ministry News Service, describing the attack last night, states:—"A new blow against Italy was struck last night by the R.A.F., when aircraft of the Bomber Command attacked oil tanks and other targets in Naples. Weather conditions were variable. Over Naples itself the aircraft crews were able to 'pin point' the targets without great difficulty.

"The attack lasted three-quarters of an hour. The first aircraft concentrated on the oil refinery and groups of storage tanks at Poggio Reale, on the southern outskirts of the city. Heavy bombs were dropped, and many explosions were followed by fires. Opposition from ground defences was slight and ineffective.

"The second raid was on the station and railway junction in Naples. In this attack some of our 'planes flew over the city at a height of less than 2,000 feet. In the third attack A.A. batteries and searchlights were attacked.

"One battery was silenced effectively."

MARKET RIGHTS OF LIMERICK

QUESTION OF SALE OF WHEAT

SUMMONSES DISMISSED

From Our Correspondent.
LIMERICK, Friday.

AN important point regarding the rights of the Limerick Markets Trustees came before District Justice J. M. Flood at the City District Court to-day, when three farmers—Thomas McNamara, Caherdavin; John Hickey, Coonagh; and John Kinnerick, Ballysteen—were summoned by the Limerick Markets Trustees for selling wheat outside the Limerick markets and within the limits of the market, without having previously paid tolls, contrary to the Limerick Markets Act, 1852.

Mr. E. Leahy, solicitor, appeared for the Markets Trustees; and Mr. D. G. O'Donovan, solicitor, for the defence.

Inspector Hannan said that he saw the defendants deliver wheat to two firms in the city. He saw the wheat being weighed on the scales of the purchasing firms.

Mr. O'Donovan—Does not the Government fix the price of wheat for each year?—Yes.

THE DEFENCE

For the defence, Mr. O'Donovan said that since 1936 the price of wheat was fixed by the Government, and consequently there could be no question of sale within the market limits. The wheat was weighed in the city, but the contract was actually made on the lands of the farmer. Apart from the question of contract, he thought that it was extremely doubtful if anyone could, for any purpose, reduce the minimum price fixed by the Government for wheat.

Mr. Leahy maintained that the contract was completed in the city, inasmuch as the vendors did not know the exact amount they were to receive until the bushelling was done in the City of Limerick.

The Justice said that the cases were of such a type that they might very well be the subject of a High Court decision. He was of opinion that the contract was made on the lands of the vendors, and, accordingly, he came to the conclusion that the defendants were not liable for market tolls. The summonses would be dismissed on the merits.

Mr. Leahy intimated that an appeal would be taken.

FACTORY FIRE AT NEWBRIDGE

DUBLIN AUXILIARIES ASSIST BRIGADE

Two crews of Dublin auxiliary firemen, some of whom had been called from their offices, took part in an attempt to save thousands of pounds worth of property in a fire in the factory of Messrs. Irish Ropes, Ltd., Newbridge, County Kildare, yesterday. The fire broke out shortly before the lunch hour, and soon part of the company's store was ablaze. Before many more minutes the whole store, in which were 800 tons of valuable jute fibre, had become involved and was burning fiercely.

The military fire brigade was summoned from the Curragh Camp, and members of the Local Security Force, with factory hands and residents of the town, helped the firemen in their attempt to save the property. The Newbridge cutlery factory is nearby, both being in the old military barracks, and it was feared at one time that the fire would spread to the second premises.

A CALL TO DUBLIN

As the danger became greater, Mr. A. Cox, chairman of the Rope Company, telephoned to the Dublin Fire Brigade, and the Dorset street section sped to Newbridge, taking with them two crews of the new auxiliary brigade, and two auxiliary fire-fighting plants, which were lent by the Department of Defence, in response to a telephone call from Major Comerford, chief of the Dublin Brigade.

The combined efforts of the fire brigades succeeded after about two hours in isolating the fire in the rope works store. The flames were prevented also from spreading to other buildings belonging to the rope company, but the store of raw material could not be saved. The building in which it was stored was destroyed. The value of the material is estimated at many thousand pounds, and that of the building at about £1,500.

The fire was put out about six hours after it had started.

The loss of the raw material is stated to be particularly heavy, in view of the difficulty which the war has placed in the way of obtaining new supplies.

Larceny from a Garden.—Before District Justice McCabe, at Waterford District Court, yesterday, a boy named James Hayes, of Queen's terrace, Waterford, was charged with the larceny of pears from a garden belonging to Richard Odlum, of Sion Hill, Waterford. He denied being in the garden on the 25th September last, the date of the offence, and when questioned by the District Justice he said that he would not eat nice ripe apples or pears. He added that he did not see any apples or pears in the garden, but that when he went there on a message he only admired the flowers. Allowing the boy the benefit of the Probation Act, the District Justice said that they had some scandalous cases of gardens being torn up by youths in Waterford. It was not so much the value of what was stolen as the amount of damage which was done in these cases. In future he would adopt severe measures in dealing with this class of offence.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

TUBERCULOSIS IN CATTLE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—During the past week there has been such a wealth of baby prattle in your columns on the subject of bovine type tuberculosis that a gentle corrective must be administered if the sanity of your elder readers is to be preserved. The trouble started with a paper submitted by Dr. C. Mushatt last May to the Royal Academy of Medicine, which has been published by the Academy in this month's issue of the Irish Journal of Medical Science. A copy of this paper, apparently, fell into the hands of an ingenuous, but excitable, member of your staff, whose enthusiasm over its contents proved to be as ebullient as that of Wordsworth when he heard the first clear strains of the cuckoo's song. Towards the end of last week, therefore, this journalist poured his full heart, to the tune of several columns, into a panegyric that must have been as embarrassing to Dr. Mushatt as it was for those of his readers who knew that his "revelations" were almost as time-hallowed as the well-known work of that name.

No, unfortunately, there is nothing new in what Dr. Mushatt has to say. He tells of "old, unhappy, far-off things and battles long ago," of which even the layman has been only too tragically aware for the past twenty years. In saying this it is not my purpose to dim with faint prose the lustre of a research student, but rather to prove his honesty of purpose. It was only the sensational publicity with which the Irish Times greeted this paper that led one to believe that anything original was being contributed to contemporary medical knowledge. Dr. Mushatt does not even imply this himself. The only original work in this communication lay in "typing" (that is, determining the identity of) the tubercle bacilli from fifty mixed cases of non-pulmonary tuberculosis, to which a whole year was devoted. An enumeration and discussion of the results obtained takes about one and a half pages. The remaining eight and a half pages are given over to a workmanlike summary of present-day public health opinion on cattle-borne tuberculosis. Out of the fifty cases investigated, seventeen were found to be infected with the bovine germ and thirty-three with the human. In view of the small number of cases typed, and in the absence of any clinical data concerning them, these figures are (as the author admits) statistically invalid. In fact, they would be worse than valueless—that is to say, dangerously misleading, if they were to be taken seriously. For example, only two cases of tuberculous peritonitis were typed. Both of these were due to the human bacillus. In short, 100 per cent. of the cases of this disease examined were seen to be due to the human tubercle germ. The absurdity of this need not be stressed. Speaking conservatively, at least five hundred cases of each class of tuberculous manifestation should be taken before one may safely and validly attempt any biomathematical interpretation of the results obtained. In this instance, therefore, where four classes of disease were included, some four hundred tests rather than fifty should have been done to be of any value.

Furthermore, the author makes no attempt to prove that any of the cases from which he procured samples of material were caused by infected milk. He merely found the bovine type of T.B. in seventeen cases out of fifty. Now, the "bovine" type is present not only in cows, but in male cattle, pigs and, less commonly, sheep and goats. Cooking does not necessarily kill the germ, so that any unknown number of those seventeen cases may have been caused by meat-borne infection. This is not to mention the possibility of person-to-person infection with the bovine type where the infection may have been passed on through an endless number of humans. In short, the author's conclusions may be summarised by saying that a certain number of non-pulmonary tuberculosis cases in this country is caused by the bovine type of tubercle bacillus—a notion that is hardly novel, to say the least of it—and that, furthermore, nothing much is being done about it.

Those of your readers, medical and otherwise, who have been preaching this doctrine for a couple of decades, will rather wearily concur. So, too, did the various physicians interviewed by your reporter, who might have been better advised to have taken this matter up with surgeons instead, as 76 per cent. of the cases considered were purely surgical. But this does nothing towards remedying the evil if, indeed, that is your intention. I shall not weary you, as you did us, with details of the various ways in which we can arrive at tubercle-free milk. These particulars are to be found in the most elementary text-books on hygiene, as well as in Dr. Mushatt's paper. The oldest of these methods—namely, the boiling of all milk—has been naïvely suggested by one of those interviewed. This, of course, is too droll. It requires only the merest nodding acquaintance with the mentality of the poorer classes to realise that such a recommendation is only less likely to be acted upon than a prescribed diet of Russian caviar. The eradication of all tuberculin-reacting stock, apart from incurring prodigious expenditure, will take years if it is ever seriously undertaken.

This means that there is one, and only one, immediate solution to the problem—namely, the country-wide pasteurisation by the Government of all milk between the time it leaves the cow and reaches the retailer. This implies pooling the milk resources of the entire country, but many of the disadvantages incurred by this course would be overcome if the sterilisation authorities purchased the milk from the suppliers and handled its subsequent distribution. The setting up of suitable sterilisation plants is not such a fantastic scheme as it may appear, and requires only a successfully received bill in the Dáil for its accomplishment. If the Irish Times, or any other enlightened body, thought fit to start a "Tubercle-free Milk Fund" towards achieving this end, I should be pleased to head the list of subscribers.—Yours, etc.,

DEEP SHELTERS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The Irish Times is doing a service of great national importance in advocating the construction of underground air-raid shelters in Dublin. The experience of Great Britain seems to prove beyond doubt that no other form of shelter gives even a fair assurance of safety in the case of a direct hit or "near miss." The Belfast Telegraph of Tuesday, October 29th, reported a case of a direct hit on an underground shelter in London in which one hundred persons were taking cover. Though the structure was damaged, there were no deaths, and only three injuries among the occupants. On the other hand, direct hits on brick-surface shelters have been reported, invariably with a considerable number of deaths and serious injuries. Press reports give the impression that the public in London and elsewhere now generally avoid brick-surface shelters, and this is borne out also by a recent statement by Professor J. B. S. Haldane, who has done a great deal of research into the subject of A.R.P. and has published a book and pamphlets advocating deep underground shelters.

Underground shelters provided before the war began by Finsbury Borough Council, London, are stated to be attracting numbers of residents each night from neighbouring boroughs less fortunately equipped, and, though no direct hit has been made on one of the Finsbury shelters, it appears that they have shown no sign of ill-effects from "near misses" which would have caused the collapse of brick surface shelter. Edinburgh Corporation decided on October 15 to ask the British Government to approve the construction in that city of deep air raid shelters designed by Professor Haldane, and Glasgow Corporation proposes to spend £250,000 on an underground shelter with several tunnels radiating from Blythswood square.

If bitter constraint can make the Corporations of great British cities willing to spend large sums of money on deep shelters after casualties have been suffered, how much more sensible if, as you suggest, Irish cities equipped themselves for the worst before it could happen? Money and material, as well as lives and time, would thus be saved.

Nor, unfortunately, as experience has already proved, is it only in cities that casualties from air raids are to be expected. Clearly it would be very difficult to provide even trench shelters in every townland in the country, but certain country districts do, I would submit, deserve more attention than they are receiving. For example, the village from which I write is situated on the border, close to obvious military objectives under the control of another State. In the event of an aerial battle developing above those objectives, and of anti-aircraft fire starting, the people of this village would be in considerable danger. The same must be true of other districts along the border, and here is an opportunity for useful work to be done relieving rural unemployment and the unemployment assistance fund, just as the building of deep underground shelters in Dublin would, as you point out in your leading article to-day, reduce unemployment and the unemployment assistance bill in the capital.—Yours, etc.,

THE ADRIATIC

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Might I point out a typographical error in your issue of to-day (1/11/'40), which might be misleading?

In the account of the broadcast speech of Admiral of the Fleet Lord Chatfield—about half-way down the article—the following phrase occurs: ". . . the Adriatic, an easy sea for our Fleet to operate in."

I did not hear the Admiral's broadcast, but, obviously, the word "not" is missing before the words "an easy sea." In point of fact, the Adriatic would be an exceptionally difficult sea for British operations—except at night, as the Admiral emphasised.—Yours, etc.,

IRISH TOURIST INTERESTS

HOTELS AND COST OF ELECTRICITY

PLEA FOR LOWER BOUNDARY WALLS

From Our Correspondent.
CORK, Friday.

Mr. R. H. Tilson presided at a meeting of the Cork County Committee of the Irish Tourist Association, held in Cork to-day, when many matters pertaining to the industry were discussed.

At the outset the Chairman, referring to the general meeting of the Association in Dublin last week, said that the general feeling there was that the traffic for the last season was very satisfactory, notwithstanding the difficulties created by the war and transport. Furthermore, the Association felt that the coming year would be a reasonably prosperous one for the tourist industry in Ireland. There was also an important discussion as to the prices charged and the facilities offered by the Electricity Supply Board throughout the country. It appeared that hotel managements, through their representatives, had made several applications for improved facilities and for a special price arrangement, and that nothing had been done. Very general dissatisfaction was expressed at the lack of facilities, and it was stated that many hotels situated in the line of the Electricity Supply Board could not get Electricity Supply Board light without very substantial capital payments. The matter was serious, and he was glad to say that the Tourist Board was to meet the Minister about it.

Mr. W. P. Musgrave said that it was only fair to say that the current passing the door might be 33,000 volts, and that to transform that into 230 volts might require special machinery.

SATISFACTORY REPORT

In the course of his report the Secretary, Mr. C. Flynn, said that a difficult season had passed, but they had much success to record. The absence of British and American visitors struck various interests, yet some of the hotels did very well, and even up to October a number of hotels were doing satisfactory trade. A remarkable feature was the great increase in business from Dublin and Belfast, and not one discordant note had been heard. In the matter of finance, subscriptions were satisfactory.

A number of members referred to the necessity for cutting down hedges and lowering boundary walls, so as to improve the view of scenery.

Mr. O'Kelly said that the Government acquired many parks in the country, such as Killarney, and they had done nothing to lower the walls so that tourists might see the country. The point should be made to the Government that where they acquired parks the walls should be lowered.

The Chairman, supporting the suggestion, referred to the County Council's protest against the reduction in the grant from the Road Fund, and said that it was their duty to support the Council. In the matter of easing dangerous corners, cutting hedges and lowering walls much remained to be done. The two motoring organisations, the R.I.A.C. and the A.A., were always in communication with the County Secretary on these matters. They should make representations to their directors to make contact with the Department on the matter, and they could also ask their secretary to express the view that enough was not being done, and that more support should be given to the County Council from the funds of the Road Board.

This course was adopted.

The Secretary was directed to make inquiries with a view to arranging a series of lectures on the tourist industry by Mr. D. L. Kelleher.

Sympathy was voted to the relatives of the late Mr. B. W. Brasier, T.D.

THE CLEARING OF CHARLEMONT AREA

UTILITY SOCIETY'S FINE WORK

The Charlemont Public Utility Society, Ltd., formed with the object of clearing the Charlemont area of its slums and providing modern homes for its residents, had the foundation stone of its new block of thirteen flats there—part of an extensive scheme of rehousing—laid by the Lord Mayor (Mrs. Clarke) yesterday. This first portion of the scheme, which is now well under way, will cost £8,270, of which £6,000 has already been given freely by supporters of the Society.

Councillor Mrs. Cosgrave, chairman of the Society, said that all the funds of the Society had been collected by voluntary workers.

The Lord Mayor, who laid the stone with a silver trowel, presented by Mr. M. Scott, the architect, expressed the hope that they were laying the foundation of a new and better civic spirit in the city. She expressed the hope that the Society would continue to receive good support and that the committee's decision to name the scheme "The Gardens" would encourage the occupants of the flats to keep them in proper and pleasing condition.

Dr. W. F. Collis said that if the Society was to continue to function they would require help from the public-spirited citizens and practical assistance from the authorities in the shape of legislation which would enable them to qualify for increased grants. Up to the present they were being treated as a society that was building for gain, and were allowed only £50 in grant on flats that cost £650 each. No society could continue to function without larger grants from the Corporation. They hoped eventually to clear the whole area between Charlemont street and Richmond street.

Mr. M. O'Sullivan said that from 85,000 to 90,000 people were living in Dublin in diabolical conditions, and at the present rate of building it would take many years to house them. It was to societies such as the Charlemont they would have to look to at least arrest the scourge of tuberculosis.

BAKERY TRADE WAGES

STATEMENT FROM F.I.M. AT INQUIRY

EVIDENCE on behalf of employers other than those engaged in the bakery trade, and further evidence from trades unions representing employés in the bakery trade, was taken by the Court of Inquiry into the Bakery Trade at a further public sitting at 13 Merrion square, Dublin, yesterday.

Mr. Erskine Childers, T.D., Secretary of the Federation of Irish Manufacturers, Ltd., handed in a statement on behalf of that body, which stated that the output of bread in this country was one-third per man of that in England, and that if the output here were raised to the same level there would be a difference amounting to one penny in the 4lb. loaf. The cost of living index, it was understood, was so weighted in respect of bread that for every penny increase in the 4lb. loaf there had to be a corresponding increase in the index of 5/4 points. The fact that if output could be increased by modern methods, if standardisation by mutual agreement could be organised, and both profits and wages in the industry regulated to suit the national interests, the whole of these arrangements would enable a vital commodity—the principal form of food in the country—to be reduced in price.

LONDON AND DUBLIN

From figures supplied from the International Labour Office, went on the statement, it appeared that London bakers received wages nearly 40 per cent. less than those paid in Dublin, and that Manchester bakers' wages were nearly 24 per cent. less than those paid in Dundalk. That would appear to be a most extreme case of wage differentiation, and in relation to the comparative output merited the most stringent investigation, having regard to the important nature of the commodity.

The Government had done everything possible to foster industry, had undertaken powers for controlling prices, profits and conditions of work, and a further step of insisting upon lower industrial costs was both logical and inevitable in the circumstances.

FEDERATION'S HOPE

The Federation trusted and believed that the court would realise the importance of the issues, and that in this case the clearest possible recommendation should be given to the Government by that court, which would encourage the Government to take a stern view of industrial costs in this and other industrial fields.

In reply to Mr. T. Johnson, member of the court, Mr. Childers said that the references in the statement to modern methods had in mind increasing the output of bread in this country. The Federation had made it clear that an essential contribution to the economic life of the country was a reduction of industrial costs by every possible means. Increases in profits should be avoided now.

Mr. D. Cullen, general secretary of the Irish Bakers' Union, said that the unions claimed that whatever the masters' submissions might be, it had been established that the Dublin bakery workers were clearly entitled to increases in wages to compensate for increases in the cost of living; that the overwhelming majority of workers in Eire of all grades had been granted increases in the war period, and that the master bakers could, on all the evidence available so far, well afford the increases asked.

THE SHOOTING OF THREE DETECTIVES

CLAIMS AMOUNTING TO £15,000

Before Judge Shannon, in the Dublin Circuit Court yesterday, malicious injury claims against the Corporation of Dublin, amounting to £15,000, arising out of the shooting of three detectives at Rathgar road on August 10th last, are at hearing, and will be resumed on Monday.

The claimants are: Mrs. Kathleen Hyland, widow of Detective-Officer Richard Hyland, late of 101 Errigal road, who claimed £5,000 for the murder of her husband in discharge of his duty, on account of his exertions to bring disturbers of the peace to justice; Mrs. Mary Anne McKeown, of Clea Keady, Co. Armagh, who claimed £4,000 for the murder of her son, Detective-Sergeant McKeown, and Detective-Officer Michael Brady, 10 Slemish road, Navan road, Dublin, who claimed £5,000 for malicious injury and maiming.

Police witnesses again told the story of the shooting, relating how a party of detectives, who, when they arrived at 98A Rathgar road, Dublin, with the object of searching the premises, were met by a fusillade of fire from inside the house, as a result of which Detective-Sergeant McKeown and D.O. Hyland fell mortally wounded, while D.O. Brady was severely injured.

Evidence was taken from police witnesses.

Mr. C. Lavery, K.C.; Mr. P. J. Roe, K.C., and Mr. P. Nugent (instructed by Mr. P. F. O'Reilly) appeared for Mrs. McKeown and Mrs. Hyland; Mr. Nolan-Whelan, K.C., and Mr. F. Sherry (instructed by Messrs. Brady and Briscoe) appeared for D.O. Brady; Mr. V. Rice, K.C.; Mr. E. J. Kelly, K.C., and Mr. T. J. Burke (instructed by Mr. J. Rice, Law Agent) appeared for the Dublin Corporation.

BELFAST'S A.R.P. MEASURES

From Our Correspondent.
BELFAST, Friday.

The Lord Mayor of Belfast (Sir Crawford McCullagh, Bart.), presiding at a meeting of the Corporation to-day, appealed to members not to discuss A.R.P. matters openly.

Alderman Henderson had raised the question of the provision of more shelters, while Alderman McCurdy complained of the number of married women in A.R.P. jobs—women whose husbands were in good jobs, he said.

Mr. Agnew drew attention to the report of a proposal to send reinforcements of A.R.P. personnel to undertake relief duties in the London area. That, he said, was all humbug. It showed a want of sincerity. "Some of them," he added, "would be more of a hindrance than a help, judging by their conduct on a recent occasion."

The Lord Mayor described such discussion as a tremendous mistake. The matter, he said, was too serious to be discussed openly.

Mr. Agnew—Are we to be like dumb driven animals?

Councillor Kilpatrick alluded to the outlay of £154,614 15s. 9d. for A.R.P. for the past six months, and said that the ratepayers were beginning to get concerned at the way in which the expense was mounting.

The Chairman of the A.R.P. Committee (Councillor McKibbin) said that they had asked the Government if the expenditure by the committee was unreasonable and had received the reply that it was not.

The minutes were adopted.

Air-pioneering in the Arctic

Arctic Pilot. By Walter E. Gilbert. Edited by Kathleen Shackleton. London: Nelson. 7/6 net.

ONLY within comparatively recent years have the vast backwoods and barren regions of Northern Canada become at all accessible. Prior to the advent of the aeroplane, the lot of the trapper and prospector was an arduous one, which involved not only endless travel, but the severe labour of the portage by which goods had to be conveyed across country in order to avoid difficult stretches of river.

The discovery of great mineral wealth made it imperative that these disabilities should be removed, and that quickly. The aeroplane service made this an easy task, and now a stream of trappers, prospectors and missionaries fly northward over almost impassable country, accomplishing in a few hours what would have taken months a short while previously. Mr. Gilbert, who now is Superintendent of Canadian Airways, Pacific Division, was one of the airmen who first essayed this pioneer work. In consequence his work is as historical as it is autobiographical, and in it he describes the early days of northwards flying.

Many names of note occur in his book, ranging from Bishop Gabriel Breynat, the flying bishop, to the Tweedsmuirs and Lindberghs in later days. The adventurous side of the work is notable, and although he writes modestly he makes it perfectly clear that the work of thus opening up the Arctic demands courage and resource in the highest degree.

In Search of Gold

A History of the Gold Rushes

The Gold Rushes. By W. P. Morrell. London: Black. 18/- net.

THE literature of the gold rushes has been chiefly confined to accounts of individual rushes—and to their romantic aspect—but Dr. Morrell has written a most interesting survey of the whole series, and gives an excellent impression of the conditions which they created, treating them from an historian's point of view.

The Californian rush was the first of the modern rushes, those taking place earlier being somewhat localised in character—as in the case of Siberia. In their initial stages these nineteenth century rushes had a bias towards individualistic exploitation on a small scale; but, as the surface alluvial deposits became worked out, technical conditions favoured large-scale exploitation and the development of gold-mining as we know it to-day.

A spirit of adventure, almost as much as the seeking of a fortune, was a factor in sending many thousands of men to some of the most inhospitable places of the earth in search of gold.

Brazil

Dr. Morrell starts his survey with Brazil, where gold was discovered in the Sao Paulo province in 1560. No developments of outstanding importance took place, however, until the end of the following century, when the Spaniards and Portuguese turned their tracks northwards and struck the richest gold-bearing areas of Brazil. The news of the discoveries spread rapidly to Portugal, and, according to one source, there were not enough ships to carry all the Portuguese who wished to go to Brazil. The intensive search for gold resulted in a neglect of farming, and in 1701 a famine at the mines caused many of them to be abandoned. The mining processes in use in Brazil, as detailed by the author, were elaborate in their crudeness, but certainly did not approach the standard of the sixteenth century miners in Germany.

The rich Goyaz district was opened up by Bartolomeu Paes with the aid of a youth, who had accompanied his father (one of the discoverers of Minas Geraes) into the district in 1682. The miners flocked to the new gold-bearing region—a migration again followed by famine.

Other Early Rushes

Other rushes followed, but none succeeded in founding flourishing industrial provinces in the Brazilian interior. This may be attributed to the fact that the period between the rush and systematic exploitation was very long owing to the lack of technical skill. In the meantime Rio de Janeiro and other coastal cities flourished. The gold rush effect on the population of Brazil is interesting: at the start of the eighteenth century the population numbered about 300,000; at the end of the same century it was over 2,500,000.

In Siberia the discovery of gold is credited to the Cossacks operating under the Strogonoffs. The first big "strike" was made in the Urals in 1744, and appears to have been developed by German technicians. The geographical features of Siberia prevented a rush as we have come to understand the word in connection with prospecting for gold. The Siberian industry was slow to develop and did not complete its evolution in pre-revolutionary times; with the Soviet Government's intensified interest in the goldfields, however, Siberia has reached second place in the world's gold production.

It is to America that we must look for the first modern rush. Gold was discovered in the Los Angeles region in 1842, but six years elapsed before a really big discovery was made in California—on the American River. Governor Mason's report, published in December, 1848, was the signal for a major rush, and before the end of the following year 42,000 immigrants had reached California—33,000 trekking across the prairies, the remainder travelling by sea to San Francisco. In 1850 the estimates of immigrants say that 36,000 travelled by sea and 55,000 over land.

The "Forty-niners," naturally, were a very democratic body, and when they began to evolve for themselves a Constitution and seek State status for California they skipped some of the ordinary processes of organisation; nevertheless, California was admitted to the Union. Law at that time was difficult of enforcement, and 4,200 murders were reported in California between 1849 and 1854. Gradually the State and the miners reached a norm, but those whose fortunes depended on the curve of goldfields' prosperity suffered severe financial losses, and there were 200 failures in San Francisco, then a city of 40,000 inhabitants, in 1855.

In America, more than in any other country in the world, the gold rushes had a bearing on the country's history, and Dr. Morrell only gives a summary of the developments, his admirable noting of sources opening up the way for the student of American history.

The developments in British Columbia and the Rocky Mountain States were virtually subsidiaries of the Californian rush, but each has received considerable attention from the author.

Australia and Africa

From America the scene of the gold rushes cuts to Australia—to Ballarat and Bendigo—where public and private works in several cities were brought to a standstill by the exodus of the male population to the goldfields. In the first six months of 1852 one-seventh of the 70,000 people in Van Diemen's Land left for Victoria—most of them were ex-convicts. Subsequent finds in New Zealand and other parts of Australia created a series of rushes between the 'sixties and 'nineties of the last century.

In South Africa gold was discovered in the Crocodile Valley in 1853, but substantial finds were not made until 1867, when an ivory hunter and a German geologist met with success on the borders of Bechuana and the Matabele country. The news of their find brought two shiploads of diggers from Australia to Durban, but there was no large-scale rush in Africa until after the big diamond finds at Klipdrift which appeared to stimulate the gold-seekers. New discoveries on the Rand led to something of a more modern type of rush—with financiers, honest and otherwise, joining in to share the spoils.

Dry weather conditions appear to have played a part in every gold rush and the drought of 1889 deprived mining companies of water and sent food prices soaring—apprehension of famine accelerated the financial crisis which followed. From this developed a period of consolidation which helped to form the basis of the South African gold mining industry of to-day.

For the last of the big rushes we go back to North America—Alaska and Klondike (incidentally, a corruption of Throndiuck) River. 1897 was the dramatic year and, according to one source, 100,000 set out for Klondike. The number who reached there, however, is estimated at 35,000 or 40,000. The following year the numbers arriving in the Klondike area were even greater. Gradually the old prospector was ousted by the more modern technical methods of well-financed development companies; by the end of the first decade of the present century the gold rushes were just historical phenomena.

Dr. Morrell's study of the gold rushes is scholarly in its attention to detail, to conditions governing development in the various areas, and to the source from which he has drawn his information. But the story he has told is also an epic of man's struggle for wealth against remarkable odds—an adventure tale more thrilling than fiction.

New Novels

Mysterious Journey. By Mabel L. Tyrrell. Hodder and Stoughton. 8/3.

MISS MABEL TYRRELL does not fit into any of the stock classifications of women novelists. She is sentimental (a love affair is all romance and no sex), she is old-fashioned (she might have been thought daring and ultra-modern in the Victorian era), and yet she is too honest a writer to be "popular," like Denise Robins or Ethel M. Dell.

The "Mysterious Journey" undertaken by the heroine of the story covers the period from 1908 to the present day; moves from Mallon, a country house in Buckinghamshire to London, and thence to France, and concerns the relations of the heroine's well-bred family with the charming and talented son of their gardener. The best chapters of the book are set in a farming community in Central France.

It is a pity to see so much observation, fine characterisation and good writing gone to waste on such an unsatisfactory plot.

Garden by the Water. By Valentine. Ward, Lock and Co. 7/6 net.

Valentine has written some nineteen novels, and his latest, "Garden by the Water," does not depart from his usual style. The plot is one of these old favourites we welcome again and again under new titles. The plot is so old, in fact, that it can neither gain nor lose anything by a new telling. It centres around an old lady who adopts a little girl, Vivienne, and chooses a young man called Jeremy to act as ward for the child. Naturally Vivienne grows up into beautiful young woman, and naturally Jeremy falls in love with her. Vivienne, however, becomes enamoured of the wrong sort of a man, becomes engaged to him, and is on the point of marrying him when her long-lost mother miraculously turns up and warns her. So everything in the garden by the water is lovely.

This is a simple novel, simply told in a clean, breezy style, with an atmosphere about it of old-world gardens and lily ponds and crazy-paving. It might be mentioned that Jeremy, a man of twenty-one, calls his uncle "Nunks" from time to time.

ROTUNDA HOSPITAL

GOVERNORS' TRIBUTE TO RETIRING MASTER

At the close of the ordinary business of the Rotunda Hospital Board meeting, held last evening—Mr. George N. Jacob, Vice-President, in the chair—the Honorary Secretary, Mr. J. Hubbard Clark, presented to the hospital, on behalf of the Governors, a portrait of Dr. A. H. Davidson, the retiring Master, which had been painted by Mr. Dermod O'Brien, President, R.H.A. The portrait is to be hung in the Boardroom.

Mr. Hubbard Clark, in making the presentation, said that the post of Master could never at any time be considered a sinecure, but the term of Mastership just closed could easily be said to have been most strenuous and exacting, as it was in many respects unique in the history of the hospital.

The number of maternity admissions for the past year was 3,884, being an increase of 1,102 on those for the year 1933, when Dr. Davidson was appointed Master, and in the Out-Patients' Department there was an increase of 18,215 over those of 1933.

During his term a new home for nurses and a new Out-Patients' Department had been built, equipped and furnished. The students' residence had been rebuilt, and the entire hospital had been reconditioned at a cost of £160,000, this being made possible by the Hospitals Trust Funds.

In all these building and rebuilding operations the Master took the keenest interest, giving much of his time to the completion of the many details connected therewith. During this time the ordinary work of the hospital had been carried on with efficiency and good temper by all the staffs.

In this connection, Mr. Hubbard Clark said he would like to pay a compliment to the Lady Superintendent (Miss Hill), who, in her quiet, business-like, methodical manner, had overcome all difficulties.

Although Dr. Davidson now severed his connection with the hospital as Master, yet, as a member of the Board, he would be able, with the assistance of the new Master, to see the completion of the scheme of reconstruction with which he had been so closely identified.

THE PRESENTATION

Mr. Clark then, on behalf of the Board of Governors, asked the Chairman to accept the portrait of Dr. Davidson, together with the request that it be hung on the walls of the boardroom as a token of their appreciation of the exceptional services rendered by him to the hospital during the term of his Mastership.

The Chairman having graciously received the portrait, Dr. Davidson in a short speech thanked the Governors expressing his appreciation of the high honour done him.

A beautiful carved mahogany panel, with the names of the Masters since the inception of the hospital, was then presented by Dr. Davidson to the hospital, and the Chairman, on behalf of the Governors, returned thanks. The panel was designed and executed by Messrs. James Hicks and Sons. The figure-carving of the crest was done by Mr. Peter Grant, under the direction of Mr. George Atkinson, Director of the National College of Art. The carving of the letters and the painting of the names were carried out by Professor Romein.

On the previous evening the staff and nurses presented Dr. and Mrs. Davidson with a cabinet and a grandmother clock.

Ambrose, in his report, stated that the association had maintained its position and increased its usefulness. The health of all the troops continued to be good.

A letter regretting his unavoidable absence was read from Lord Powerscourt, who was re-elected President of the Association.

Mr. Quirk (chairman), Mr. Ambrose (hon. secretary), and Mr. W. J. Machesney (hon. treasurer), were all re-elected.

LEOPARDSTOWN PROGRAMME

ETOILE DE LYONS SHOULD WIN AUTUMN PLATE

THE Autumn Plate for two years old, which is the chief event on to-day's card at Leopardstown, will bring into opposition many of the best youngsters of the season. Etoile de Lyons, Cuirm Gail and Star Haven are all winners, and the first-named, who won over six furlongs at the Curragh in August, has scored also at Leopardstown. It looks as if the three named will fight out the finish, and the preference is for Etoile de Lyons.

Tote Double on Third and Fifth Races.

There will be a big field for the Leenane Plate, run over seven furlongs. Evora won with such ease at the Curragh that, even with a 7lb. penalty, she must take a lot of beating. Capron may be the danger.

Mikado has been declared for two races, and if saddled for the Renvyle Plate looks to have a good winning chance. Senator, who was third to Chinese Legend and Avatea at the last meeting, may win the Kylemore Hurdle. Selections:—

Renvyle Plate—Mikado.
Leenane Plate—Evora.

CAMERON OUT OF LUCK

Falls When Making Effort in Naas November Handicap

FURTHER proof of the popularity of the Naas course with the racing public was given yesterday, when there was what looked to be almost a record attendance. There were some bad reverses for backers, notably the failure of Cameron, an odds-on favourite for the November Handicap. Whether he would have won or not but for an unfortunate mishap must remain in doubt. He was never in a prominent position, and when he tried to come through in the straight he slipped up and fell. W. Barrett, his rider, appeared to have a bad fall, but it afterwards transpired that his injuries were slight, and it was only as a precautionary measure that he was sent to St. Vincent's Hospital for examination.

Cavalaire, Avena and Falkirk were, in turn, shouted as the likely winner two furlongs from home, but Delage then came upon the scene, and quickly settled the pretentions of all three and won in handsome style.

The Galway Plate winner, Ring of Gold, also caused a big disappointment by his running in the Grand National Qualifying Plate. His jumping in the early stages was none too good, but he flattered when taking the lead half a mile from home. This effort he could not sustain, however, and he was soon beaten. Swindon Glory, Astrom and Pulcher then joined in a rousing finish, and passed the judge's box in the order named. It was a well-deserved win for Mr. J. A. Mangan, owner and trainer of Swindon Glory, whose luck has not been in the ascendant of late. Mr. P. P. Hogan rode in cool and capable style to score over more experienced riders.

Avatea and Court-na-Ree, two of the best supported candidates for the Ruanbeg Hurdle, came down at the first flight, and there was a fine race between Mike the Ganger, Baybush and Bluster. The first-named stayed on the best and won by three-parts of a length. The winner is trained by J. Moloney, the jockey, who, in the next race, the Mountjoy Plate, rode the much-fancied On Time. His mount and Singing Knight, on different sides of the course, were always the leading pair, but Singing Knight stayed on the better and scored cleverly for Mr. A. D. H. Cooke. Shining Knight is out of a full sister to Crowdennis and was bred by Mr. P. Dunne Cullinan.

M. C. Collins, trainer of Cameron, was more fortunate when he saddled Philippian for the amateur riders' race, Mr. Joe McGrath's horse, having the race in safe keeping at almost every stage; and another easy win was that of Mr. H. M. Hartigan's J.W. in the Rathbride Plate. Details:—

NOTTINGHAM CARD

MANY of the best horses in training will be seen out at Nottingham to-day. The field for the Cambridgeshire will be little below average in size, and the race has an open appearance. The versatile Black Speck, winner of three Liverpool Cups, is fancied, but this fast track may not be in his favour. Quartier Maitre is well handicapped, but has not been out since winning the Lincolnshire Handicap. Defiant beat Moontraen readily at Leicester, and holds a bright chance, but Bacardi and Heavy-Weight have shown their best form over longer distances. Allure has been moving well of late, and is preferred to Ridley, Impress and Sister Carol. I have a great respect for Defiant, but the selection is Tornade, a game and speedy filly.

INGLE LUCKY TO GET VERDICT

The main bout of the night at the Stadium last evening, Jimmy Ingle v. Corporal Dowdall, was almost put into the shade by the bantam-weight contest between W. Lenehan, the junior champion, and J. McGouran. In gaining a clear victory on points, Lenehan put himself into the top class of senior ranks, and he gave a really grand display. Attack is Lenehan's motto, and after being outboxed in the first two rounds, he kept after his opponent so fiercely that McGouran was worn down in the end.

The Ingle-Dowdall match was, in fact, a tremendous battle, in which Dowdall showed such an improvement on the last meeting between the two that he might, perhaps, have got the verdict. Long range hitting was so difficult that the entire six rounds was spent in close-range boxing, in which the punching was extremely powerful. Ingle was the attacker almost from start to finish, and he kept both hands going like ramrods. Dowdall shot out some extraordinary effective right-hand punches, which found Inglis's face, and must have hurt, and in the last round he drove off Ingle's attack and staged a great finish, but even though Dowdall's hitting was the more spectacular, his opponent did a shade more scoring. It must, however, have been a hair-line decision. Results:—

Juvenile (5st. 7lb.)—M. Scott (Mount Street Club) beat P. Holmes (Catholic Scouts). 9st.—J. Lyons (Finglas) beat L. Keane (Mount Street Club).

Fly-weight—P. Alford (Corinthians) beat P. Purfield (Tramway) on points.

Bantam-weight—W. Lenehan (Arbour Hill) beat J. McGouran (Unity) on points.

Feather-weight—J. Ingle (St. Andrews) beat Corporal P. Dowdall (Islandbridge) on points; A. Delahunt (Unity) beat P. Sharpe (Corinthians), referee stopping bout in second round.

Light-weight—T. Foran (Unity) k.o. J. Smith (Luttrellstown) in second round.

Welter-weight—M. Talbot (Unity) beat H. Dignam (Luttrellstown) on points, R. Kelly (Spartan, Kilkenny) beat A. Reynolds (Drogheda) on points.

Novice—W. Bell (Finglas) beat J. Whitney (Mount Street Club) on points.

Middle-weight—C. Forde (St. Andrews) beat M. Sadlier (Whitehall) on points.

Cruiser-weight—P. Devoy (St. Andrews) beat J. Kelleher (Baldonnel) on points.

JOE FOLEY MATCHED

Joe Foley (Dublin), who has returned from England, has been matched with Jim McCann, the Ulster bantam champion.

HOCKEY

No changes have been announced for to-day's Red Cross match at Londonbridge road, so the two best teams to be chosen from the Dublin clubs will take the field for what should prove to be a first-class match. Leinster are particularly well served at half-back, where Pilkington, Lonergan and Sanderson are almost certainly the best line in the country and the forwards are potentially a dangerous lot, but The Rest have a very solid defence, in which Lindsay and Ledwidge are likely to be outstanding, and, if Butler is a success, the halves will watch the Leinster line closely. The teams should be evenly matched, and the match seems certain to provide top-class hockey. The match is timed to start at 3.15, and the teams are:

LEINSTER (Blue).

Goal—D. McDonald (Dublin University).

Full-backs—F. Stevenson (Railway Union), G. K. Donald (Three Rock Rovers).

RUGBY FOOTBALL

Apart from the continued absence of F. Quinn, Old Belvedere will be at full strength for their attractive match against Queen's University at Jones's road this afternoon. H. Uprichard, for their injured centre, S. D. Walsh, is Trinity's only change behind the scrum against Lansdowne at Lansdowne road, and forward, L. Jacobson will hook instead of J. N. Green. F. Cosgrave is unable to play in the centre for Lansdowne, and D. Tierney will be absent from the pack.

Even though Blackrock College will be without six of their regular players for their visit to Garryowen, they are so well supplied with substitutes that they are quite likely to maintain their victorious progress. University College will have their regular XV. in action against their Cork University rivals at the Mardyke. Monkstown journey north, and possibly will find North of Ireland too strong for them in all departments.

GAELIC GAMES

Dublin hurlers are well prepared for to-morrow's challenge on their home pitch. Galway's form against Tipperary was disappointing, but two searching home tests have brought them on a lot. With Gill and Quinn, of Faughs, on the Western side, and Burke in a key position, Galway are just the side to test Dublin, who have never played so well as against Tipperary and Westmeath. The principal fixtures are:—

National Hurling League—Dublin v. Galway, Croke Park, 3.0; Waterford v. Kilkenny, Dungarvan; Cork v. Clare, Cork; Laoighis v. Tipperary, Portlaoighise.

Football League—Donegal v. Sligo, Maheragallon.

DUBLIN

SHARP RISES IN HOME FUNDS

INDUSTRIALS ALSO ADVANCE

On the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday there was again strong buying of most Irish stocks and shares, and prices continued to move in favour of holders. Home Government Funds were again a feature of strength, while there were a number of firm features among Industrials. Changes in British Industrials continued featureless.

Home Government Funds again recorded sharp advances, and the Fourth National Loan spurted 25s. to 101¼ and 4 p.c. Exchequer Bonds advanced a further point to 108½; 4½ p.c. Land Bonds improved to 111¼, but Financial Agreement Loan eased to 103½. British Funds showed a little more activity and the tendency was firmer; 3½ p.c. War Loan moved up to 101 1/16; Dublin 3½ p.c. 1955-80 shaded off to 92¾, but other issues were all buyers. Apart from a slight shrinkage in Nationals to 36s. 6d., Banking issues held up well. Guinness units failed to quote here, but were nominally better at around 66s. 10½d. Rails looked rather sellers and Great Northern Guar. lost a point at 26. Dublin Tram Ord. hardened to 12s. Bakeries continued in request and Johnston Mooney Ord. gained 1s. 3d. at 27s. In Draperies, Arnott Pref. closed 1s. higher at 73s. 6d.

Carroll Ord. strengthened 1s. 6d. to 24s., but Clondalkin Paper Ord. shaded off to 6s. 3d. Gresham Hotel Ord. relapsed 1s. 9d. to 30s. Goodbody Pref. fetched 1s. higher at 25s. and Goulding Ord. rose to 25s. 6d. May Roberts (Ireland) Pref. and Yam Seng Rubbers tended higher, but Irish Sugar Pref. eased to 24s.

Imperial Tobaccos hardened to 101s. 1½d., but Courtaulds dipped slightly to 28s. 3d. Hawker Siddeley Ord. quoted 9s. 3d. and Victoria Falls Ord. 66s.

BRIGHTER AND BUSIER

TALK OF ANOTHER WAR LOAN

Contrary to week-end tradition, the London Stock Markets experienced more business yesterday, and numerous bright features made their appearance, particularly in the gilt-edged section, where quotations were able to make a better response to expectations of reinvestment operations after the Canadian stocks "call up." Investment demand was in evidence right from the start, and the falling trend of interest rates, as seen in the recent decline of ⅛ per cent. in the Treasury rates on Local Loans proved a contributory factor in the resultant rise in values. Final gains ranged up to ¼, and, as has been the case on other good days in recent weeks, the possibility of the ground being prepared for another war loan in the near future was being discussed in some quarters.

In addition to the expansion in business in gilt-edged, several Industrial groups claimed increased attention, and some notably good features developed among Shipping, Steel, and Brewery shares. Meanwhile, Kaffirs continued to attract quiet demand on dividend prospects, and selected British Rail stocks changed hands at enhanced levels.

Old War Loan was prominent in the early improvement in British Government Securities, and a further advance of ⅛ to 101¼ in the stock helped surrounding issues to shake off the hesitancy created earlier in the week by the extension of the war to Greece. Finally, Local Loans and War Loan 3 per cent. were both ¼ higher, whilst Conversion 3½ per cent. showed a recovery of 3/16 to 101 13/16.

Among Foreign Bonds, some of the Brazilians continued on the up-grade, and a fresh rally to 10½ occurred in Greek 7 per cent. of 1924.

RAILS MOVE UP

Turnover in British Rails remained small, but the belief that some of the prior charges may attract part of the Canadian Stock Funds, coupled with the rising trend of Gilt-edged, enabled the market to respond to small inquiries. The chief movement was a rise of ¼ to 33¼ in Great Western Ord. Among the senior issues, L.N.E. 4 per cent. First Pref. rallied a point to 32½. Foreign Rails formed another subdued group, with Argentines still on the downgrade. On the other hand, the Colonial group had more life, and Canadian Pacific 4 per cent. Debs. further appreciated to 89½.

Industrials, as a whole, continued to fluctuate within narrow limits, but the majority of movements were in the right direction, and, in a number of instances, fairly substantial gains were recorded. A feature in the Brewery group was a recovery in Guinness to 67s.

Mines had no particular feature, but, for the reason mentioned above, Kaffirs were able to make a little progress. Western Holdings, Libanons, and West Wits were again favoured, whilst Western Reefs held very steady at 18s. 3d. on the belief that satisfactory developments have taken place recently on this company's property. Rhodesian Copper shares were uninteresting. Elsewhere, Ashanti picked up to 40s., and Zinc Corporations were stimulated by the large increase in Imperial Smelting Company's profits. Interest in Oils remained at a low point, but demand for T.P.D.'s continued, and a firmer tendency was noticeable in Mexican Eagles at 4s. 3d., and Leaseholds at 68s. 9d.

LONDON MONEY MARKET

Conditions in the London Money Market were without material change yesterday. There was a plentiful supply of credit, and overnight borrowers readily satisfied their needs at the usual rates. The banks were active buyers of short-dated bills at the customary rate of 1 p.c. There was less demand for forward silver, and the quotation lost the previous day's advance of 1/16d. to 23 7/16d. Spot was maintained at 23½d. per ounce. The Foreign Exchange Market was without interest, all rates being without quotable change.

FINANCIAL NOTES

£53,000 PROFIT AND 10 P.C. DIVIDEND

CLONDALKIN PAPER MILLS' EXCELLENT YEAR

Excellent trading results were obtained by Clondalkin Paper Mills, Ltd., in the year to August 31st last. The profit from the paper mill and paper sack manufacturing accounts, before providing for depreciation, amounted to £53,040, compared with £18,849 in the previous year. Provision has been made for the depreciation of premises, plant and machinery to the extent of £9,612, and also the debit balance of £2,998 on the profit and loss account on August 31st, 1939, leaving an available balance of £31,052.

Provision for income tax and corporation profits tax take £9,000 and £3,500 is written off preliminary and development expenses. The sum of £7,500 is transferred to general reserve and to provide against possible loss of assets held in European countries from which delivery cannot presently be obtained. As already known a dividend of 10 per cent., less tax, on the Ordinary shares is being paid. This will absorb £10,562, leaving £490 to be carried forward.

The balance sheet shows that the outlay on the paper mills during the year was £26,396 against £3,059, and on the paper sack factory it was £3,297, compared with £2,901. Stocks on hand at cost or market price, whichever is the lower, stand at £74,167, compared with £28,030 at this time last year. Assets held in European countries from which delivery cannot presently be obtained total £15,206, being made up of wood pulp to the value of £13,689, machinery £858, and cash paid with order for machinery not yet delivered £659.

The annual meeting is being held on Friday next at 3 Stephen's Green, Dublin, at 12 noon. The company's transfer books are closed until November 9.

Corporation Issues

Corporation issues are now meeting with strong investment support, but there is very little stock on offer. Where transactions have taken place sharp advances have resulted. Owing to the sharp upward swing in most gilt-edged stocks the majority of these issues now look extremely attractive. In addition to giving a comparatively high return for money invested nearly all have definite dates for redemption. The following table shows the yields obtainable at around their present prices:—

Central Argentine Railway

The directors of the Central Argentine Railway Company have accepted a suggestion of Lord Luke that the 2½ years' moratorium should only be extended with the sanction of separate meetings of the holders of the Four per Cent. Stock, the Five per Cent. Stock and the notes. As the scheme was drafted it was to be left at the absolute discretion of the Stockholders' Committee, if requested by the company, to extend the moratorium by resolution. Lord Luke put forward an amendment to provide for the above change, but it was heavily defeated on a card vote. Afterwards the Chairman said the Board was willing to accept the amendment.

Hotel Profits Slump

Trading profit of the Strand Hotel, Ltd., has dropped from £83,000 to £56,000, and the directors do not recommend a final dividend on the Participating Preferred Ordinary shares. The interim of 2½ per cent., therefore, stands as the total for the year against 7 per cent. The Deferred are out of the dividend list for the first time. Last year 322 per cent. was paid, against 644 per cent. for some years previously.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

PROFIT-TAKING CURBS ADVANCE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Friday.

The extremely bright industrial news and the better political feeling in Wall street were the chief props in the Stock market to-day. The turnover of 1,260,000 shares comprised 856 issues, of which 363 advanced and 261 declined.

The market opened active and firm on a resumption of yesterday's buying, based on rising optimism for Mr. Willkie. Profit-taking stalled the advance in the afternoon and the volume dwindled. The market continued under persistent profit-taking, as well as evening-up for over the week-end, with the final list mostly fractions either way.

The close was irregular.

AFFAIRS OF MR. ANTHONY DREW

EXAMINATION IN BANKRUPTCY

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE BLACK.)

Anthony Drew, the young Englishman, who had been examined in the Bankruptcy Court about his affairs, was further examined yesterday, and on the suggestion of counsel for the assignees, that Mr. Drew should have time to consider his position before an application for his committal was made, the matter was adjourned for a fortnight.

He had been living in the Shelbourne Hotel, but now, he stated, he was staying at the house of Mrs. Tyrrell, 41 Usher's quay, Dublin.

Mr. Felix Sherry (instructed by Messrs. Malcomson and Law) appeared for the assignees, and Mr. Arthur Cox, solicitor (Messrs. Arthur Cox and Co.) for Mr. Drew.

Mr. Drew was questioned by Mr. Sherry, and said that since October 18 he had been receiving money from Mrs. Winterbottom. On the previous Friday he had received £5 from her, and £30 a fortnight before that.

Mr. Sherry referred to a letter from Mr. Drew to Mr. Baldray, of Messrs. Silverton and Co., stockbrokers, dated March 26, 1940, in which Mr. Drew stated that he wanted to borrow £12,000, to be repaid in five years; that he was in a position to pay only £700 a year interest during the five years; and that at the completion of the five years he would be able to add another £5,000, making the interest on the loan £8,500 altogether.

"Where," asked Mr. Sherry, "do you expect to get the income of £700 a year?"

Mr. Drew replied that he had already told the Court that he expected to get it from Mrs. Winterbottom. She had a trust fund from which to get the money.

JUDGE'S WARNING

When Mr. Drew was asked to give particulars about the capital from which he said Mrs. Winterbottom was to receive the income, he said that he did not think that that had anything to do with the bankruptcy proceedings.

Mr. Justice Black warned Mr. Drew to be careful, observing: "You are a very young man who has made a great fool of himself. There is an experienced counsel in court and he knows whether the questions have anything to do with your case or not. You have been a great fool, so just be careful. I am giving you a lot of latitude, but you are not answering questions in the way they should be answered."

Replying to further questions of Mr. Sherry, Mr. Drew said that at the moment Mrs. Winterbottom received no income, because it was held up by the court.

Mr. Drew said that his mother, who was a trustee under his father's will, had been living at Lisnavar, Rathvilly, County Carlow, since last August, but he had not received any money from her. He had asked her what she could do to help him, but she had replied that she was not in a position to do anything.

Mr. Drew laughed when Mr. Sherry asked him had he produced a wad of £5 notes in a publichouse in a street off Dame street about 9 o'clock on Saturday night on October 19.

Mr. Sherry—Did you produce a wad of £5 notes in this licensed premises, or in any other licensed premises, on October 19?—I did not do any such thing. I had not any £5 notes.

So that if evidence were given to the effect that you were seen producing this wad of notes, do you suggest it was a case of mistaken identity?—I do. It was not true that he had been in the publichouse mentioned.

THE THREE MOTOR CARS

Mr. Drew was then questioned about three Mercedes motor-cars, regarding which he had given an undertaking on October 18 to the effect that he would not dispose of them. Two of the cars were in London, and one in a garage in Dublin.

Mr. Sherry read a letter written by Mr. Arthur Cox on October 31 to the Official Assignee, in which he said in regard to one of the cars in London that Mrs. Winterbottom instructed a firm of solicitors to buy the car for £557 in October, 1939. The receipt was in her name. This car had been damaged in the bombardment of London, and had been sold before the bankruptcy proceedings against Mr. Drew. The other car had been paid for in cash by Mrs. Winterbottom in October or November, 1939. It had also been sold. The car which was now in Dublin had been bought in October, 1938, in England, paid for by Mr. Drew, and brought to Eire on a triptique made out in the name of Mrs. Winterbottom. Mr. Drew had given these cars as gifts to Mrs. Winterbottom, and she had informed him that she would make no claim to the car now in Dublin, but had no knowledge whether the assignees in her bankruptcy in England would allow her to renounce any claim to the cars in London.

Mr. Cox had written again on the 1st inst. to the Official Assignee, stating that there was an error in his letter of October 31, which had arisen through the misunderstanding of a 'phone message. The fact was that the two cars stated to have been sold prior to Mr. Drew's bankruptcy had been pledged as security. Mrs. Winterbottom had informed them that although the two cars had been given to her, and were in her name, she, personally, would make no claim to them.

MR. DREW'S HEALTH

Mr. Cox, solicitor for Mr. Drew, said that at the last examination it had been suggested that possibly Mr. Drew was in this country to avoid British military service. Since then a London doctor, who had been attending Mr. Drew, had communicated with him, and had instructed him that Mr. Drew was in a very poor state of health. He thought that it was only fair to state that as so much publicity had been given to the case.

Mr. Justice Black said that he had nothing to do with that. The statement of some unknown doctor in London about Mr. Drew's health at some unspecified date might be of some consequence or it might not.

Mr. Sherry said that that concluded the examination as far as it went. It had been his intention to apply to have Mr. Drew committed for unsatisfactory answering, but it might be in the interests of everybody if Mr. Drew had a short period to consider his position before he applied formally to have him committed.

Mr. Justice Black said that if an application of that kind were to be made he would have to read the evidence through very carefully again. He had heard the evidence and noted it. It was very far from satisfactory, but that was not enough. He had given Mr. Drew good advice, and Mr. Drew was in the hands of a very competent solicitor, who, he was absolutely certain, had given him the best possible advice.

The matter was adjourned for a fortnight.

SIGHT-TESTING CASE

APPEAL AGAINST AWARD DISMISSED

An appeal against a decree for £3, awarded by a District Justice to Miss Elizabeth Murtagh, Cross Ardagh, against Harold C. Moscow (trading as George Prescott and Sons, Dublin), was dismissed by Judge Gleeson at Longford Circuit Court.

Miss Murtagh testified that she read the defendant's advertisement in the newspapers, and attended at a hotel in Edgeworthstown to have her eyes tested. She understood that she was to meet George Prescott, an eye specialist; she was examined by a man, who, she afterwards learned, was not an eye specialist. The charge was six guineas, and she paid £3 on account. She did not get the glasses, and had consulted her solicitor. In cross-examination she said that she had written to the defendant, and stated that she had had trouble with her cattle as an explanation why she had not forwarded the balance of the demand.

Wilfrid Weldon, who said that he was three and a-half years in Moscow's employment, gave evidence to the effect that he was the representative who examined Miss Murtagh's eyes. He was fully qualified by experience, he said, but had no examination qualifications.

Harold Charles Moscow testified that his firm manufactured the glasses ordered. He was a member of the Worshipful Company of Spectacle Makers, and, as that, a Freeman of the City of London. He graduated in America, where he obtained the degree of Doctor of Ophthalmy, "but," he added, "I don't bother about it." He had been testing eyes for twenty-four years, and the glasses made for Miss Murtagh were as good as could be made.

Judge Gleeson said that the plaintiff made the payment of £3 under a mis-statement of fact, which was created through the advertisement which set out an invitation to the public to have their eyes tested by a firm of qualified opticians, established since 1875. The plaintiff believed that she was dealing with a firm of professional opticians, whereas she was dealing with a tradesman employed by the manufacturers of these articles—an artificer rather than a professional man. He had no reason to think that Mr. Weldon or Mr. Moscow, in their own line of business, were not skilled—in fact, they might be very highly skilled; but they were not what they stated in the advertisement which induced Miss Murtagh to part with her money.
